Johnson's Budget Discloses Biggest 'Peacetime' Deficit

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked for "sacrifice and hard choices" today in a budget message calling for record outlays of $186.1 billion and a $10.2 billion income tax surcharge—in effect, he said, a war levy.

"It is not the rise in regular budget outlays which requires a tax increase, but the war in Vietnam," Johnson told the Congress which has stalled off an election-year tax boost.

The presidential message gave high priority to government attacks on poverty, crime and pollution on the home front, and to a $76.7 billion outlay for the Defense Department—almost one-third of it to be spent on Vietnam alone.

10 Per Cent Tax Boost

But he pounded again and again, in a 556-page message drafted in a new-style "unified" format, on the need for an anti-inflationary 10 per cent tax boost starting April 1 for individuals and retroactive to Jan. 1 for corporations.

Without the tax hike, he warned, the federal deficit "would be near $20 billion for the second year in a row." With it, the fiscal 1969 deficit will be $8 billion, he said.

But the message disclosed that fiscal 1968, the government year now half over, will show the biggest "peacetime" deficit in history, $19.8 billion. The Johnson deficit eclipses President Dwight D. Eisenhower's red-ink record of 1959, $12.4 billion.

The startling height of the new spending total is due chiefly to the "unified budget" format recommended by a bipartisan presidential commission. But actual dollar outlays are escalating, too. They will climb $10.4 billion, or 5 per cent, next year if Congress permits.

The new-looking budget shows outlays about $47 billion higher than they would have looked under the old-fashioned "administrative budget" because it adds onto the regular federal spending the outlays of the huge government-held trust funds—such as highways, Social Security and medicare. Payments into those funds are for the first time treated just like regular tax collections.

Those were mere paper changes. More significant disclosures came in these Johnson highlights:

War—Vietnam costs add up to $25.8 billion in the new budget, rising $1.3 billion from this year. In four fiscal years, 1966-69, the U.S. will have poured $75 billion into the war.

Excises—The 10 per cent telephone tax and 7 per cent auto excise should be extended beyond April 1, Johnson said, instead of dropping then to 1 per cent and 2 per cent respectively. This, plus the surtax and proposed speedup of corporate tax payments, would bring total tax increases to $12.9 billion in fiscal 1969.

Reduce Building Programs

Construction—A broad slowdown looms in federal construction. Cutbacks will reduce 1969 building programs by about $1.6 billion below the appropriated levels of 1968, Johnson said.

Federal debt—The national debt, as measured by the unified budget, will total $387.2 billion on June 30, 1969. Since part of this is not subject to the congressional debt ceiling—which rises automatically to $365 billion on July 1—Johnson said no increase in the legal limit will be needed. But if Congress fails to vote the sur-

GIs Repel Koreans, Beef Up Air Power

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — U.S. troops drove back North Korean infiltrators along the Korean armistice line again early today as the diplomatic drive to avert war over North Korea's seizure of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo focused on the United Nations.

Shooting occurred along the demilitarized zone for the eighth straight day.

An early solution to the Pueblo case through U.N. action is doubted by one diplomat. Meanwhile, two U.S. senators say blockade or sinking of North Korean gunboats are possible if nation refuses to give up ship. These stories may be found on Page 3.

And with the North Koreans giving no ground in the crisis over the Pueblo, the Pentagon said it was strengthening U.S. air power in the Far East with an unspecified number of planes.

'Precautionary Measures'

A spokesman in Washington brushed aside questions on the type of aircraft and units involved, saying only that their deployment was one of a series of "precautionary measures" taken since North Korea captured the Pueblo and her 83-man crew last Monday.

The Navy froze most requests for discharge from members of Naval Reserve units. This followed President Johnson's call-up of 14,600 Air Reservists Thursday.

South Korea was also increasing its preparedness, announcing that "quick reaction" army units would be stationed along routes frequently used by Red infiltrators from the North. Defense Minister Kim Sung-eun reported at the same time that U.S. authorities have advanced by a month to the end of February, the completion of delivery of $23 million worth of special counterespionage weapons and equipment.

U.S. officials at the Pentagon refused to comment on reports that the carrier Yorktown had joined the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise off North Korea. The Japanese newspaper Asahi reported that a Soviet destroyer equipped with missiles and another ship were shadowing the Enterprise, while another Soviet destroyer was anchored in the Tsushima Strait between Japan and South Korea.

A U.S. military spokesman said four more North Korean groups failed in attempts to sneak into the South through the 18-mile stretch of frontier guarded by the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division. He said there were no American casualties, and Communist casualties were not known.

At the United Nations, a well-placed diplomatic source suggested that while the council might take no specific action on the crisis, its debate and private consultations could lead to a contact elsewhere and a peaceful settlement.

North Korea again appeared antagonistic toward any U.N. role in a settlement. The North Korean newspaper Rodong Shin-moon repeated a government statement that it would not recognize any U.S. resolution "concocted to cover up U.S. imperial aggression."

It said the U.S. decision to bring the issue before the Security Council was "like a thief shouting 'stop that thief!'"

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, speaking in India, said there was no doubt that the Pueblo intruded into North Korean waters, and he declared that the United States and North Korea must settle the matter themselves.

Kosygin's remarks indicated that the Soviet Union would continue to spurn U.S. requests that it intervene in the dispute.

A suggestion from members of Kosygin's entourage that the Pueblo and her crew might be exchanged for North Korean infiltrators captured in the South was rejected by a South Korean Foreign Ministry spokesman as "outrageous and nonsensical."

In another statement that appeared to rule out any quick deal for the Pueblo's crew, the Syrian radio said North Korea Vice President Kang Yang Ouk stated in Damascus his government is "bent on severely punishing" the men. Kang was on his way from Moscow to Baghdad.

Ray Takes Month's Leave of Absence

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Two major developments occurred at city hall this morning shortly before noon.

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan returned to his office after a week in the hospital and promptly announced he was taking a month's leave of absence.

The Navy froze most requests for discharge from members of Naval Reserve units. This followed President Johnson's call-up of 14,600 Air Reservists Thursday.

South Korea was also increasing its preparedness, announcing that "quick reaction" army units would be stationed along routes frequently used by Red infiltrators from the North. ● The mayor also signed the 1968 city budget ending week-long speculation that he might veto it.

Speaking of the leave of absence, Garraghan, who spent last week in Kingston Hospital, said, "I have to take a month's rest or quit. That's all there is to it. It's doctor's orders."

The budget signing followed an 80-minute meeting with Alderman John Naccarato (R-Third Ward). Said Garraghan after signing the budget approved by the Common Council last Monday, 7-5. "No one has given me any reason why I should not approve this budget."

Naccarato had stated that he would present a revised budget ratio. Alderman-at-Large T. (Garraghan) had just signed the budget after it was passed. When you send me a letter telling me to revise or resign, it sounds like you think I'm shirking my duty."

Naccarato did have a budget, but it was in worksheet form. The Finance Ways and Means Committee was scheduled to attended by Garraghan, Naccarato and Robert Gallo, Minority Leader Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) and a Freeman reporter. Garraghan, in a letter to Republican aldermen had told them to come up with budget revisions or resign their posts.

When asked if he thought he would receive any support from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Pike volunteered, "I have no idea."

It was State Chairman John J. Burns, a professional Kennedy Democrat who yesterday said he felt there was little chance that Kennedy would support any candidate running on a conservative platform. However, he told newsmen at the raceway perhaps RFK would take a hands-off policy as he did in the 1966 gubernatorial race.

Many of the Long Island politicians in attendance at yesterday's gathering, surmising that Pike and Resnick will be joined in the race by Manhattan lawyer Morris Abram, offered the opinion that because both Resnick and Abram have only moderate power bases their chances therefore are slim.

Burns said he welcomed Pike into the race but voiced some unhappiness over his openly conservative views.

Abram, whose name keeps cropping up in the news as a possible contender, has recently been in Vietnam investigating refugee conditions for the American Jewish Committee.

He belongs to a law firm of which a former Kennedy intimate, Ted Sorenson is a member.

Many persons on the political scene have given some credence to the idea that Sen. Kennedy will, when and if he does take a stand, back Abram. That Abram is relatively unknown at this point does not seem to bother the potential candidate, who said yesterday he will announce one way or the other within the month.

"With the power of television and radio," he says, "the public relations people say you can make any person well known inside of six weeks."

Abram has also been known to express the view that over-exposure can be a danger and thinks that perhaps this may turn out to be Javits' detriment.

On Vietnam, Abram says he cannot do anything but acquiesce to administration policy until he relinquishes his post as a member of the U. S. Mission to the United Nations.

Said the mayor, "We had to have those raises. We couldn't get applicants at $5,100 starting salary." The starting salary for both departments is now $5,450.

Garraghan and Naccarato differed mainly in salaries. Naccarato's plan was to revert to the 1967 salary schedule. Garraghan would not accept this, especially in regards to the police and fire departments.

Pike to Seek Dem Nod Along With Joe

By LYNN MULVANEY

Congressman Otis K. Pike, Democrat of Riverhead, says he will seek the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate to oppose incumbent Republican Jacob K. Javits.

Saying he would "run a more conservative race than Sen. Javits," he told newsmen Sunday that he would formally announce his candidacy in Washington Tuesday.

"I'm running on a basically conservative platform. This is my honest position. I am not pseudo-liberal, said the 46-year-old Pike now completing his fourth term in Congress.

Pike disclosed his plans at the annual winter reception of the Nassau County Democratic organization at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, L. I.

The second Democrat to announce he will seek Javits' seat, Pike is not exactly the kind of "peace" candidate Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has been calling for to oppose him for the Democratic senatorial nod.

Declaring that "there is no love lost" between Resnick and himself, Pike told newsmen that his views on Vietnam are similar to President Johnson's and that he is "basically behind" the President.

Speaking of Javits, who is known for his dove-like view of the war, Pike insists "Javits can be beaten but not by another Javits. You have to find someone with a different philosophy."

Resnick Reply Tuesday

Contacted at his Washington, D. C. office this morning, Congressman Resnick said he would issue a statement on Pike's entry into the race after formal announcement is made tomorrow.

When asked to outline his conservative position Pike said he did not want to telegraph the theme of his campaign. He merely said he intended to run more conservative than Javits—or "any Democrat thus far mentioned."

When asked if he thought he would receive any support from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Pike volunteered, "I have no idea."

Johnson's Budget Discloses Biggest 'Peacetime' Deficit

reported that a Soviet destroyer equipped with missiles and another ship were shadowing the Enterprise, while another Soviet destroyer was anchored in the Tushima Strait between Japan and South Korea.

A U.S. military spokesman said four more North Korean groups failed in attempts to sneak into the South through the 15-mile stretch of frontier guarded by the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division. He said there were no American casualties, and Communists casualties were not known.

At the United Nations, a well placed diplomatic source suggested that while the council might take no specific action on the crisis, its debate and private consultations could lead to a contact elsewhere and a peaceful settlement.

North Korea again appeared antagonistic toward any U.N. role in a settlement. The North Korean newspaper Rodong Shinmoon repeated a government statement that it would not recognize any U.S. resolution "concocted to cover up U.S. imperial aggression."

It said the U.S. decision to bring the issue before the Security Council was "like a thief shouting 'stop that thief!'"

Soviet Premier Alexie Kosygin, speaking in India, said there was no doubt that the Pueblo intruded into North Korean waters, and he declared that the United States and North Korea must settle the matter themselves.

Kosygin's remarks indicated that the Soviet Union would continue to spurn U.S. requests that it intervene in the dispute.

A suggestion from members of Kosygin's entourage that the Pueblo and her crew might be exchanged for North Korean infiltrators captured in the South was rejected by a South Korean Foreign Ministry spokesman as "outrageous and nonsensical."

In another statement that appeared to rule out any quick deal for the Pueblo's crew, the Syrian radio said North Korea Vice President Kang Yang Ouk stated in Damascus his government is "bent on severely punishing" the men. Kang was on his way from Moscow to Baghdad.

Ray Takes Month's Leave of Absence

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Two major developments occurred at city hall this morning shortly before noon.

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan returned to his office after a week in the hospital and promptly announced he was taking a month's leave of absence.

The Navy froze most requests for discharge from members of Naval Reserve units. This followed President Johnson's call-up of 14,600 Air Reservists Thursday.

South Korea was also increasing its preparedness, announcing that "quick reaction" army units would be stationed along routes frequently used by Red infiltrators from the North. Defense Minister Kim Sung-eun reported at the same time that U.S. authorities have advanced by a month to the end of February, the completion of delivery of $23 million worth of special counterespionage weapons and equipment.

U.S. officials at the Pentagon refused to comment on reports that the carrier Yorktown had joined the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise off North Korea. The Japanese newspaper Asahi

● The mayor also signed the 1968 city budget ending week-long speculation that he might veto it.

Speaking of the leave of absence, Garraghan, who spent last week in Kingston Hospital, said, "I have to take a month's rest or quit. That's all there is to it. It's doctor's orders."

The budget signing followed an 80-minute meeting with Alderman John Naccarato (R-Third Ward). Said Garraghan after signing the budget approved by the Common Council last Monday, 7-5, "No one has given me any reason why I should not approve this budget."

Naccarato had stated that he would present a revised budget rate, Alderman-at-Large T. (Garraghan) had just signed the budget after it was passed, he would present a revised budget to that committee, of which he is a member. That meeting has been cancelled since Garraghan signed the budget.

The mayor's health has been a subject of some concern around city hall for the past few months. He had been ill for three days before entering the hospital with what was described as a "heavy chest cold." Garraghan said today he has been suffering with pneumonia and has not yet recovered.

Alderman-at-Large Gallo will serve as mayor in Garraghan's absence. Gallo told The Freeman this morning he would be able to fit the duties of the mayor's office in with his regular job. He said he expects to be a full time substitute for Garraghan during the latter's absence.

Garraghan and Naccarato differed mainly in salaries. Naccarato's plan was to revert to the 1967 salary schedule. Garraghan would not accept this, especially in regards to the police and fire departments.

Said the mayor, "We had to have those raises. We couldn't get applicants at $5,100 starting salary." The starting salary for both departments is now $5,450.

Pike to Seek Dem Nod Along With Joe

By LYNN MULVANEY

Congressman Otis K. Pike, Democrat of Riverhead, says he will seek the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate to oppose incumbent Republican Jacob K. Javits.

Saying he would "run a more conservative race than Sen. Javits," he told newsmen Sunday that he would formally announce his candidacy in Washington Tuesday.

"I'm running on a basically conservative platform. This is my honest position. I am no pseudo-liberal, said the 46-year-old Pike now completing his fourth term in Congress.

Pike disclosed his plans at the annual winter reception of the Nassau County Democratic organization at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, L. I.

The second Democrat to announce he will seek Javits' seat, Pike is not exactly the kind of "peace" candidate Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has been calling for to oppose him for the Democratic senatorial nod.

Declaring that "there is no

love lost" between Resnick and himself, Pike told newsmen that his views on Vietnam are similar to President Johnson's and that he is "basically behind" the President.

Speaking of Javits, who is known for his dove-like view of the war, Pike insists "Javits can be beaten but not by another Javits. You have to find someone with a different philosophy."

Resnick Reply Tuesday

Contacted at his Washington, D. C. office this morning, Congressman Resnick said he would issue a statement on Pike's entry into the race after formal announcement is made tomorrow.

When asked to outline his conservative position Pike said he did not want to telegraph the theme of his campaign. He

When asked if he thought he would receive any support from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Pike volunteered, "I have no idea."

Hands-Off Possible

It was State Chairman John J. Burns, a professed Kennedy Democrat who yesterday said he felt there was little chance that Kennedy would support any candidate running on a conservative platform. However, he told newsmen at the raceway perhaps RFK would take a hands-off policy as he did in the 1966 gubernatorial race.

Many of the Long Island politicians in attendance at yesterday's gathering, according to that Pike and Resnick will be joined in the race by Manhattan lawyer Morris Abram, offered the opinion that because both Resnick and Abram have only moderate power bases their chances therefore are slim.

Welcomed by Burns

Burns said he welcomed Pike into the race but voiced some unhappiness over his openly conservative views.

Abram, whose name keeps cropping up in the news as a possible contender, has recently been in Vietnam investigating refugee conditions for the American Jewish Committee.

He belongs to a law firm of which a former Kennedy intimate, Ted Sorenson is a member.

Many persons on the political scene have given some credence to the idea that Sen. Kennedy will, when and if he does take a stand, back Abram.

That Abram is relatively unknown at this point does not seem to bother the potential candidate, who said yesterday he will announce one way or the other within the month.

"With the power of television and radio," he says, "the public relations people say you can make any person well known inside of six weeks."

Abram has also been known to express the view that over-exposure can be a danger and thinks that perhaps this may turn out to be Javits' detriment.

On Vietnam, Abram says he cannot do anything but acquiesce to administration policy until he relinquishes his post as a member of the U. S. Mission to the United Nations.

Many Schools Closed

Ice Plays Havoc on County Roads

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Freezing rains accompanied by low temperatures moved through the mid-Hudson valley Sunday night and early today, causing sheets of ice to form on most secondary roads in rural areas and several main highways.

Authorities in Ulster, Greene and Dutchess Counties investigated a rash of traffic accidents. Hazardous driving conditions forced the closing of schools in many districts in the three-county area. Buses, in other sections started out more than an hour late because of bad conditions.

A Greene County man was killed and his daughter injured—but luckily escaped death in a spectacular traffic mishap Sunday night on Route 23-A about two-tenths of a mile west of Will Palmer Road in the Town of Catskill.

The spectacular Greene County mishap which occurred at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, claimed the life of Joseph Mangano, 49, of 28 Division Street, Hunter. Troopers at Leeds said the car owned and driven by the victim was traveling west on Route 23A and negotiating a right curve downgrade when the vehicle skidded out of control. The car struck a guard rail, slid along the shoulder and knocked down 9 other guard posts before it hit a bridge abutment and plunged 70 feet into a shallow creek.

Mangano was extricated from the vehicle and rushed to Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill where he was pronounced dead on arrival by coroner's physician, Dr. Joseph Cally. Death apparently was due to multiple fractures and internal injuries, according to preliminary examination.

Mangano's daughter, Helen,

15, survived the mishap which took the life of her father. The girl was taken to the hospital in Catskill and treated for shock, lacerations and contusions of the face. Authorities said she managed to escape from the car and made her way to the highway to summon aid for her father.

The mishap was investigated by Senior BCI Investigator J. J. Buckley and Troopers J. W. Miller, V. J. Barbero and R. G. Sprague.

Schools were closed in District 6, West Hurley, Ontario, Tannersville, Catskill, Hyde Park, Red Hook, Rhinebeck, Webatuck, Pine Plains and in some other areas because of the hazardous driving conditions. Buses in the Rondout Valley Central School district made the regular runs 1½ late. In the Saugerties school district, buses left the garages an hour later than usual and buses that cover the Zona-Sawkill section of the Kingston-up School District Consolidated were off schedule for an hour.

Two women were injured at 7 p. m. yesterday when the car in which they were riding skidded out of control and slammed into a utility pole of Fox Hollow Road in the Town of Rhinebeck. Troopers said Kathryn W. Wieting, 68, of the Rhinebeck Country School, was driving her car west when the mishap occurred. She sustained minor injuries. A passenger, Lynne Martin, 18, same address, was treated at the Northern Dutchess Hospital for lacerations of the scalp and possible fracture of the right knee.

George Fichtner, acting county superintendent of highways, said "checkers" were on patrol through the area Sunday evening and sand and salt crews were called out before 3 a. m. when things started to tighten up.

Coal Miners Strike In Anger Display

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Thousands of union coal miners were on strike today in a display of anger over the mass arrests of miners during violent picketing at a small nonunion mine.

Dozens of pits were knocked out of production through Western Pennsylvania when United Mine Workers refused to cross picket lines set up shortly before midnight Sunday.

It was not learned immediately whether the union sanctioned the walkout—or tried to prevent it.

"I have no knowledge of an organized strike in this area or in the state," said Harvey Younker, a UMW district president, who was contacted in Johnstown. He declined further comment.

Miners were expected to meet today in some mine towns, presumably to discuss how long they'll stay out. One unconfirmed report said a three-day shutdown was planned.

The number of miners on strike was not known, but it was believed to be high. Western Pennsylvania is one of the nation's biggest soft coal regions.

Some 90 state troopers poured into the hills near Johnstown on four different days last week after hundreds of pickets converged on the No. 4 mine of the Solar Fuel Co. Violence flared twice.

Police arrested 18 pickets Wednesday and 155 Saturday. They were charged with violating a court order limiting the number of pickets to 15. Two union organizers were arrested Friday.

Booked by the arresting officer, Trooper Oscar Gray were David Friedman, 21, and Michael Pushkin, 20, both of Ellenville, and Stephen Cooper, 16, of Woodbourne.

Arraigned before Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Poppel the three defendants were ordered committed to the Ulster County jail pending a preliminary examination on Tuesday. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

Charles T. Martin, 23, of South Street, Highland, was cited for four vehicle and traffic violations Saturday after he was stopped near the entrance to the Thruway at New Paltz by Highland Troopers Joan Crodell and J. W. Hutchins. Martin pleaded guilty before New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider and was fined a total of $150. In lieu of payment of the fines he was committed to the county jail until payment is made. He was charged with driving without a license, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, switched plates and no insurance, according to Trooper J. F. Czaplinski.

Assault Charge Lodged After Officer Is Hit

A fight at the Woolworth's Department Store on Wall Street Saturday afternoon injured three men and sent one of them to the Kingston Hospital emergency ward.

Charged with aggravated assault and disorderly conduct was John William Bezemer, 20, of 28 Liberty Street.

Kingston police report that a call came into police headquarters at 4:27 p. m. Saturday from the Wall Street store claiming that a young man was causing a disturbance in the firm.

Police officer Larry Stead responded to the call.

Reportedly, Bezemer got into an argument with Tom J. McInerney, assistant manager of the store, and refused to leave when the official ordered him to.

A fight broke out in which McInerney was punched in the face causing an injury to his mouth.

When officer Stead arrived on the scene he placed Bezemer under arrest, charging him with assault and disorderly conduct.

Allegedly, Bezemer broke away from the policeman and started to fight again, punching the officer in the mouth and head.

Bezemer was subdued and brought to the Kingston Hospital emergency room with injuries of the face and head.

While at the hospital, Bezemer was alleged to have broken a screen and light bulb.

Bezemer was brought to city court today and Judge Hubert Richter remanded him to the Ulster County jail without bail to await court action on Feb. 12.

Bezemer will be represented by Kingston attorney Sherwood Davis.

The 20-year-old youth was represented in court today by attorney Joseph D. Saccaman. He faces charges of disorderly conduct, third degree assault on McInerney, and second degree assault on officer Stead.

He was also charged with using offensive language in the store and making obscene gestures.

Legion District Pledges Support To President

American Legion Third District Commander H. Edgar Timmerman, responding to a motion passed during a district meeting in Kingston, sent a telegram to President Johnson pledging "loyal support" for U.S. efforts in the Korean crisis.

The action was initiated by Alex J. Woehrl, a vice-commander of Albany County, while attending a Third District meeting at Kingston Post 150 on West O'Reilly Street.

The Timmerman telegram reads: "In this new crisis in North Korea that has confronted America, we, the delegates to the Third District... express to you our loyal support of your efforts to resolve it diplomatically and, God forbid, if other measures are required, we shall be wholeheartedly with you."

Doubts Early U.N. Solution In Pueblo Case

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — One well placed diplomat expressed belief today that no solution to the crisis over North Korea's capture of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo would be worked out in the U.N. Security Council in the next few days.

Another source suggested that while the council might not adopt any decision in the case, its debate and private consultations would stimulate diplomatic activity elsewhere that eventually would produce a peaceful settlement.

No Data on Meeting

In advance of another council meeting this afternoon, the group's 10 nonpermanent members were meeting during the morning with Council President Agha Shahi of Pakistan to hear a report on the meeting Sunday between U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg and Soviet Ambassador Platon D. Morozov.

U.S. officials would give no information on the meeting between Goldberg and Morozov at the headquarters of the Soviet U.N. mission. Morozov said it was "routine" that such talks were "usual for any process of consideration of any question before the Security Council."

It was the first known meeting between Goldberg and Morozov since the council on Friday began debating the U.S. charge that North Korea seized the Pueblo in international waters.

Diplomatic sources said the nonpermanent members at a meeting Saturday split over proposals for council action. African and Asian members backed Ethiopia's idea of investigating whether the ship was in North Korean waters when taken last Monday. Some others supported Canada's proposal for an intermediary to seek the release of the ship and her 83-man crew.

Goldberg and Morozov met at the suggestion of Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff.

In suggesting an investigation, Ethiopian Ambassador Endalkachew Mekonnen also suggested that the council invite North Korea to come and give its side of the story.

No Objections

Some diplomats said neither the Soviet Union nor the United States would object to inviting both North and South Korea to take part in the debate, though neither intended to propose it.

Blockade, Sea Action Possibilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Democratic senators say such military action as a blockade of North Korea or sinking its gunboats are possible if she refuses to return the USS Pueblo and its crew of 83.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen also said Sunday that if diplomatic means fail, "we are going to have to put our foot down."

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield continued to urge caution, saying avoidance of another Asian war must be a paramount goal.

The congressional reaction to the Pueblo crisis came as the Pentagon announced that U.S. air power in the Far East is being beefed up as a precautionary move. Details were kept secret.

Other Washington developments in the aftermath of the Pueblo's seizure:

—The Navy froze most requests for discharge by members of Naval Reserve units. There are more than 133,000 Naval Reservists in drill-pay status.

—Sources said that while the U.N. Security Council continued, this country was asking several countries for backstage help in resolving the crisis.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate preparedness subcommittee mentioned a possible blockade if the North Koreans don't return the ship and crew.

Stennis did not advocate any specific military action, mentioning the blockade possibility during an interview. But he said he wouldn't "rule out anything," including the use of nuclear weapons.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., suggested the United States might start sinking North Korean gunboats or holding that country's merchant ships hostage if peaceful means fail.

"It was an act of piracy, it's an act of war, and I believe that we should make an appropriate response," Long said.

TELETHON HELPERS — About 150 Ulster County youngsters went out on their own this weekend to collect for Cerebral Palsy in connection with the annual telethon emanating from Albany. According to Mrs. Martin Nilan, Ulster coordinator, the children brought in $1,277 which contributed to the $9,617 total raised in Ulster and Green Counties. Through the telethon effort, more than $200,000 was realized in the Albany area, Mrs. Nilan said. Some of the children are shown at the Ulster County Savings Bank, local telethon headquarters. The Road Signs Again Indicate Assembly Boss Bound for Bench

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia once again was reported today to be heading for a federal judgeship.

Well-posted sources said the Legislature's ranking Democrat had told party leaders that he wished to be appointed to the court after the Legislature adjourns and that they are trying to accommodate him.

Travia, a 56-year-old Brooklyn lawyer, has been rumored in line for the U.S. District Court intermittently during the last two years.

Convicted of Staying

Most recently, during the Constitutional Convention, over which he presided, Travia was said to have indicated his wish to go to the bench before the 1968 legislative session.

However, State Chairman John J. Burns and U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy convinced him that he must stay on at least through the 1968 session because would-be successors were prepared to wage a party-splitting fight over the post.

The only two serious contenders have been Assemblyman Stanley Steingut, the party leader in Brooklyn, and Assembly Majority Leader Moses Weinstein, Democratic chairman of Queens.

The sources said that Burns and Kennedy still were trying to arrange a settlement between Steingut and Weinstein on the basis that, since Travia has kept his commitment, the party out to reciprocate.

Democratic National Committeeman Edward Weiss also has participated in discussions of the potential judgeship for Travia. This is because the appointment would be made by President Johnson, subject to Senate confirmation, and Weiss is Johnson's spokesman in New York Democratic affairs.

One new angle to the problem is that there now are two vacancies in the same federal court district in New York and the sources said, U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits is arguing that one of them should go to the Republican party.

There was some concern among Democrats that, if Javits did not have his way, he might challenge Travia's qualifications when the Senate takes up the appointment.

In recent years, Travia has sharply limited his law practice in order to concentrate on legislative affairs. He has gained bar association clearance for federal court service, however.

Steingut Has Edge

Of the two potential successors to Travia, Steingut appears to be the more formidable. He showed considerable strength when he challenged Travia for the speakership job in 1965, losing out when Assembly Republicans broke a deadlock by deciding on Travia.

Steingut's father, the late Irwin Steingut, was the last Democrat to hold the speakership before Travia.

Weinstein, who allied himself with Travia in the 1965 struggle, has said he would go all out against Steingut again to win the coveted post for himself if Travia should vacate it.

Travia, now in his 23rd legislative session, was said to have come to a decision that it is time to call it a career in Albany.

"He might change his mind later," said a Travia confidante, "but I doubt it."

Travia insistently has declined to comment on the possibility of a judgeship for him.

Holding Action

Travia on Repeal of Blaine

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia sought today to head off Senate action on repeal of the State Constitution's controversial Blaine Amendment.

The Senate's Republican majority leader, Earl W. Brydges, planned to ask his house to vote Tuesday for repeal of the Blaine ban on state aid to church-operated schools.

Meets Brydges Today

But Travia, the Legislature's ranking Democrat, said he would meet with Brydges today and urge him to postpone the move, until April at least.

Travia said his reason was that the U.S. Supreme Court had agreed to consider a challenge to New York's textbook loan law, which requires public school districts to provide books to parochial school children.

"If the court upholds the law, then the Blaine Amendment would have no meaning," Travia told The Associated Press. "We could get rid of it that way."

"So why not wait and find out?" Brydges aides reported, however, that the GOP leader was determined to carry out his election-time promise that action on Blaine would be given top priority by the Senate.

"He feels very strongly about it," a spokesman said.

Unless Brydges yields to Travia's appeal, the Senate will echo Tuesday with the same church-state debate that churned the waters of last year's Constitutional Convention.

Catholic church interests, seeking financial help for their schools, argue that the 74-year-old Blaine stricture is unfair and unrealistic. Protestant and most Jewish groups contend that it is an essential safeguard of the tradition of separation of church and state.

Favors Repeal

Travia, who presided over the Constitutional Convention, favors repeal of Blaine and helped write a repeal provision into the charter that New York voters rejected last November.

He now maintains that, in view of the voters' action, it would be wise to let the issue cool for another year. Thus, even if the Senate follows Brydges' lead, as expected, Travia is not likely to bring the measure to a vote in his house.

Under the legislative procedure for altering the Constitution, amendments must gain approval by two separately elected Legislatures, then be submitted to the voters for a final say.

In another development, Gov. Rockefeller sent to the Legislature today another appeal for passage of his highway-safety bills.

He said in a special message that the Motor Vehicle Department had recorded 2,916 traffic deaths in this state last year — the highest toll since 1937, when 3,065 were killed.

His program proposes to:

— Require all new drivers in this state to complete at least three hours of classroom training as a prerequisite to getting a license.

— Empower the courts to sentence drivers convicted of any moving violation to attend driver-safety courses.

— Establish an experimental program, under which drivers facing suspension or revocation of their permits would be allowed to keep them if they agreed to attend retraining courses.

— Count bail forfeitures and out-of-state convictions in the "point system" that determines when a repeated violator must be disciplined by the commission.

— Provide for a $15 penalty when a motorist ignored an order to turn in his license or registration. The money would be used to defray the cost of having police pick up the permits.

— Authorize the commission to set regulations for periodic re-examination of drivers, subject to the governor's approval.

Doubts Early U.N. Solution In Pueblo Case

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — One well placed diplomat expressed belief today that no solution to the crisis over North Korea's capture of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo would be worked out in the U.N. Security Council in the next few days.

Another source suggested that while the council might not adopt any decision in the case, its debate and private consultations would stimulate diplomatic activity elsewhere that eventually would produce a peaceful settlement.

No Data on Meeting

In advance of another council meeting this afternoon, the group's 10 nonpermanent members were meeting during the morning with Council President Agha Shahi of Pakistan to hear a report on the meeting Sunday between U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg and Soviet Ambassador Platon D. Morozov.

U.S. officials would give no information on the meeting between Goldberg and Morozov at the headquarters of the Soviet U.N. mission. Morozov said it was "routine" that such talks were "usual for any process of consideration of any question before the Security Council."

It was the first known meeting between Goldberg and Morozov since the council on Friday began debating the U.S. charge that North Korea seized the Pueblo in international waters.

Public Views Congress

Congress may be held in the lowest esteem in five years, as shown in the latest poll by Louis Harris, but anyone trying to find a broad reason for this view would be very much confused. For the criticisms and cheers of those polled do not jibe.

Specific criticisms of the first session of the 90th Congress were directed at failure to pass a gun control bill, cutbacks in aid to cities, failure to pass an open housing law and reductions in funds for the poverty program. The gun bill may be connected to crime in the streets. The rest may be part of the Great Society program.

But when it comes to the positive side, the public cheered refusal to pass the income tax surtax, for increasing Social Security benefits, for extending the draft and for cutting foreign aid funds. Without a surtax, there would be no funds for Great Society measures the Congress was criticized for not passing. Increasing Social Security benefits was a bi-partisan accomplishment. So was draft extension. And the cutting of foreign aid had been building up for years.

The war in Vietnam, which has been held out as the prime issue in this election year, was not even mentioned. Another leading issue, crime in the streets, was only indirectly mentioned, and passage of the gun control bill might just as well be thought of as a blow against organized crime. The public mind as revealed in this poll is as confused as that of the Congress they hold so low.

The political meaning of all this is no easier to deduce. During the last five years, Congress was held in lowest esteem in 1963, when it was given a score of 35 positive to 65 negative votes. Yet President Johnson swept the count and a Congress of his party with him on the record in 1964. On the other hand, the highest Congress rating in the same period of 71 to 29 in 1965 was followed by the biggest loss the Democrats had sustained in the 1966 by-election—a net loss of 47 House seats.

Almost one wonders if issues are the guiding influences we think they are in elections.

22,000 Suicides

Sixty persons took their lives every day last year—a total of 22,000 in the country. Suicide was the tenth leading cause of death in this country, as the tragedy of self-destruction was enacted every 24 minutes of every day.

Because of eight of every ten persons who kill themselves gave definite warnings of their suicidal intentions, the pattern of an approaching suicide is so recognizable that many psychologists believe many suicides can be prevented by appropriate and timely intervention.

Accordingly, 40 suicide prevention centers are now operating in 17 states and the District of Columbia. They respond to telephone calls for help 24 hours of the day. They attempt to establish a rapport and keep a conversation going while they try to discover the caller's primary problem and send emergency assistance to help him. One center, at Los Angeles, handled 5,000 calls last year.

Emotional disorders which manifest themselves in some significant change in basic biological functions and behavior that cannot be determined by routine physical examination are the most general indications of impending suicide, according to Dr. Mathew Ross of Harvard Medical School. In three of four cases, the emotional ills that precede suicide are depression or alcoholism.

A nationwide spread of prevention centers should help people out of their depression and cut deaths substantially.

'Plan for the Worst'

"Hope for the best, but plan for the worst," is the message that Attorney General Ramsey Clark gave to 19 police chiefs and their mayors in the first of successive seminars that will be held at Airlie House at Warrenton, Va., for 120 or more police chiefs and city heads of cities of over 100,000 in the country.

"Riots can be prevented," Clark declared, "but if they occur, we can control them."

They key to riot prevention or control is balance, Clark added. The police can contribute to the problem if they overact or if they underact. One policeman on the beat who cannot control his temper could undo all the work of an entire force.

The policeman is the man in the middle this year. His responsibility is perhaps greater than at any time in history. That is why riot prevention and control require more police, better police and better trained police.

Clark gave some amazing figures on police costs. Last year, they totaled $2.8 billion on local, state and federal levels. And this in a country that spent $8.8 billion last year on tobacco and $12.4 billion on liquor.

Obviously, the nation can afford more and better law enforcement officers. For they will be under intense pressures from many directions this summer. And they will have to stand firm and cool without showing or acting upon fear.

"My Cup Runneth Over!"

David Lawrence Says

Seizure Strengthens U.S. Cause in Vietnam

WASHINGTON—It's an ill wind that blows no good. The Communists, by their seizure of a lightly armed vessel of the U.S. Navy off North Korea, have unwittingly strengthened the American case in the Vietnam war. They have shown the world that Communist imperialism is neither a myth nor an illusion, as so many of the "doves" in this country have been arguing.

The capture of the American vessel is an act of war. It emphasizes the simple fact that the forces of the United States and those of North Korea are still in a state of hostilities, and that the armistice which was signed through the United Nations in 1953 is merely a "cease-fire" and by no means has ended the state of war existing in Korea.

The Communist regime in North Korea broke the armistice several days ago when it sent guerrillas into Seoul, capital of South Korea, in an attempt to assassinate the head of that government.

President Johnson does not need any "declaration of war" to call up reserves or to send more American airmen and planes into the Korea area to recover the "Pueblo" and its crew—by force, if necessary.

Under International Law, when a state of hostilities exist, there is no such thing as a territorial "limit" to international water. There is no conceivable right to seize a vessel of another country on the high seas except by the assertion of a war power. The American ship was, in fact, at least 15 miles from the North Korean coastline.

Amazingly, a spokesman for the U.N. first said the United Nations was in no way directly involved in the crisis over the seizure of the ship. He added that the secretary-general would not intervene on his own initiative. Yet the United Nations has a military force in Korea which is stationed along the 38th parallel to guard the truce line.

So it was natural for the United States to demand a meeting of the security council to deal with the Korean crisis. This could mean a showdown with Moscow, which may have been the real instigator of the North Korean action in seizing the American ship. The Russians have all along been very much interested in learning about the electronic apparatus on American ships, as they are themselves engaged in the same kind of intelligence activity in the waters of the North Pacific and along the coast of Alaska.

It was not surprising to find the Soviet government, at the direct request of this country, unwilling to use its influence to get the North Korean regime to release the American ship and its crew. But when the U.N. steps in, the Soviet Union might find it expedient eventually to help solve the problem.

Apart from the involvement of the United Nations, however, the capture of the American vessel is an act directed against the United States. The government in Washington has every right to seek redress and the punishment of those who participated in the seizure.

When President Johnson called up National Guard and Reserve Units this week, putting additional fighter and transport planes into service, the action was deemed necessary to reinforce American air power in Asia. This may be crucial in the event that there are developments in the Korean region which would require more naval and air strength.

The call-up of about 15,000 National Guardsmen and Reserves emphasizes that the entire Asian situation is by no means free from potential danger and that, unless the Vietnam war is fought to a successful conclusion, other attempts will inevitably be made to provoke clashes with this country.

It so happens that the United States does not need to keep in Vietnam waters any large number of naval vessels and can also draw from other parts of the world some aircraft carriers. The mere presence of such ships near the coast of Korea could have a salutary effect on those Communist officers in North Korea who deliberately ordered the American naval vessel to be seized.

The new incidents in the Far East certainly make it obvious that the United States is not fighting in just a "civil war" in Vietnam, but is endeavoring to thwart Communist imperialism throughout Asia. The "Pueblo" incident may well serve to clear the air and show the critics that the pulling out of Vietnam can only mean a bigger war for the United States.

LBJ's War Against Crime Ignores Basic Problems

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

President Johnson's approach to combating crime in the streets poses a serious question of whether it gets at the root of the problem.

In his State of the Union message, the President asked for $100 million to develop state and local master plans to combat crime, to provide better training and better pay for police and to bring the most advanced technology to the war on crime.

Though some will argue whether these actions should be federally or locally financed, few will question the need for more local planning, better training and pay, and a greater use of technology in the nation's police forces.

But scientists who spend their time studying police forces and crime in the major cities recently outlined for this reporter their list of problems that must be solved first if crime in the streets is to be significantly reduced.

These men said there must be new respect for the policeman and his job among the general citizenry.

In an era when many law-abiding citizens look down on the police and subconsciously regard the man on the beat as an enemy, effective capture and conviction of criminals is extremely difficult.

Today, on a wide scale, citizens refuse to co-operate with the police. They refuse to come forward as witnesses. They know of crimes and won't report them. They use their influence to get tickets fixed and other law violations "quashed" for their friends, their children and themselves.

The police forces must attract more men with technical, managerial, accounting, scientific and organizational skills.

If police departments are to be efficiently administered and if crime detection is to become more scientific, local police system must attract large numbers of college graduates and men with graduate degrees.

Of late, percentage-wise, very few college graduates are joining local police forces.

Higher salaries alone won't bring in the better-educated men.

Able men with high qualifications want work that brings respect.

They want work in which they can assume responsibility and meet challenges commensurate with their knowledge and background.

It won't be enough to institute training programs. You can't usually make a doctor or a lawyer of a boy with only a high school education by means of a few part-time night courses, or even with a one-year leave of absence at some specialized school.

Though there are brilliant exceptions, if you need doctors or lawyers, you normally must employ young men who have graduated from medical or law school, or men well on the way.

The men who study crime say the same approach will have to be made by the nation's local police forces.

Drew Pearson Says Rep. Joelson Favors End To Appropriations Secrecy

WASHINGTON—The American people who have to pay the tax bill will soon get revealing insight into how cavalierly their money is voted away inside the House Appropriations Committee.

One of its more forthright members, Rep. Charles Joelson, D.N.J., is planning to take the public into his confidence regarding the manner in which money is approved at the rate of $1 billion per minute. He will also reveal how funds for the CIA are hidden or buried so that not even members of Congress know what the total is for this spy agency.

The New Jersey Congressman is planning a blistering speech. The rules of Congress do not permit him to criticize another Congressman, so he will be careful to praise the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Texas Democrat George Mahon. However, he will criticize the operations of the committee.

"The committee operates under rules that are archaic as they are undemocratic," Joelson said in advance of his speech. "No town council in America could long get away with the procedures of this unit charged with the responsibility of spending the money of the nation."

All hearings are closed without exception to the press and public alike. Strangely enough, the press has accepted this in a docile manner, although very few of such hearings deal with national security and require secrecy in the national interest."

The committee goes overboard, even denying its own members access to information regarding certain government bureaus such as the Central Intelligence Agency, Joelson says.

There is simply no total, specific appropriation for the work of the CIA. Its funds are hidden or buried. While it is obvious that CIA operations must be cloaked in secrecy, this does not mean that the people of the United States or their representatives should be forbidden to know the total sum spent by the agency."

Joelson describes Chairman Mahon as a "thorough gentleman" who has backstopped himself with members having a viewpoint similar to his on the importance of military appropriations and the unimportance of human appropriations.

"The complexion of the Defense Subcommittee may well explain the fact that in 1967 it added to the main military appropriation almost a billion dollars more than requested by the President and the Defense Department," says Congressman Joelson.

But if Mahon believes that the funds for a particular program should be curtailed, he stacks the subcommittee with Congressmen unfriendly to that program.

Military vs. Health
Example: The Labor, Health and Education Subcommittee, headed by liberal Rep. Dan Flood, D-Pa., was packed with two conservative Democrats in order to give Republicans control.

Joelson also charges that members of the full committee—51 in all—receive almost no advance briefing on subcommittee reports, so that they vote in the dark.

"A feeling of fantasy assails a person who, in a period of time no longer than an hour, is expected to vote, for example, on a defense appropriation of $62 billion," says Joelson. "Although it may be a heady experience to be spending $1 billion per minute, it is also a most discouraging one."

"In an age when planning is widely thought to be desirable, there is no over-all plan for allocating funds for the widespread operations of our national government. In a nation which prides itself on being the brightest example of democracy, there is no real democracy in the body established within Congress for spending the people's money.

"Rules and procedures of another century remain entrenched. This is the way we appropriate in Congress. The question before the House is: 'Is this appropriate in 1968?'"

It will be interesting to see whether Congressman Joelson is gavelled down by Speaker McCormack or allowed to tell the American taxpayers the truth.

Reversing McNamara
Word of Secretary McNamara's resignation had scarcely reached Saigon before the American military command quietly sidetracked his plan to reorganize the South Vietnamese army.

He wanted to train mobile Vietnamese striking forces, which could take over more of the fighting and permit American troops to begin a gradual withdrawal. The plan was first proposed in 1965 but was rejected by the U.S. commanders, who didn't want to resupply the Vietnamese with any additional sophisticated weapons.

More important, they didn't want to admit that their 12-year training program had been a failure. They had trained the South Vietnamese army for old-fashioned warfare and, as a result, Vietnamese troops had trouble adapting to guerrilla warfare.

The American generals still insist that after the American withdrawal the biggest threat will be an invasion from North Vietnam. They want to leave a conventional South Vietnamese army. This suits the Vietnamese generals, who would lose much of their power under the reorganization plan. Therefore they, too, resisted any overhaul of their army.

McNamara overruled all these objections last July and ordered the retraining of Vietnamese battalions to begin at once. The program, just getting underway, has now come to a stop—after news of McNamara's departure.

TV Today Is Prime Cause of Crime

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The intelligent thing for parents to do today, of course, is to switch off all violent TV—the Third Parent in your home—until the moguls running the fast-buck machines know as NBC, CBS and ABC show some conscience.

Their Neanderthal standards are destroying parental influence with a hit as powerful and smooth as the three-inch jab made famous by Joe Louis.

How on earth can conscientious mothers and fathers face this dreadful competition in the upbringing of the children? Millions of impressionable children spend more time at the feet of this Third Parent, TV, than they do listening to their parents. And the dreadful competition only starts with that insidious fact—

We pay incredible sums and carry enormous public burdens to educate our children. I, for one, am totally on fire about the need for education, and countless conscientious parents sacrifice a very great deal to provide it for children they love, are responsible for and support. Yet millions of these same children spend more time at the feet of the TV set than in school. And the villainy they're taught they are performing.

The proof? As this column recently pointed out, the current FBI Crime Report officially states that 40 percent of all serious crimes now involve boys and girls under 18. And I know of no independent investigator, and certainly not the FBI or the mayor of a single major city in the United States, who does not agree that television today is a prime cause of crime.

We spend additional vast sums of preaching better nutrition. If what goes into children's stomachs is so important, how about what goes into their minds?

When you realize the repetition, repetition, repetition of this TV diet—morning, noon and night, years on end—how can parents safely permit this Third Parent to take over?

This is the most powerful medium any civilization ever had. The combination of hearing and seeing something at the same time, right at home, is unique in all history. The unprecedented power is so enormous that the networks urge advertisers to spend billions to use it. Our children are not affected? The NBC, CBS, ABC moguls have a colossal nerve to tell us that. If this isn't double-talk, what is?

Children imitate what they see and hear, as every parent knows. The Third Parent in the home is teaching them by repetition, repetition, repetition to expect violence and to seek it. And, remember, again, the villainy they're taught they are performing. Nothing is more dangerous than to assume your own children will remain exempt.

We're constantly told that juvenile delinquents and teenage criminals are the products of poverty; that they come from poverty-stricken, so-called underprivileged homes. Simple truth, an astounding proportion come from absolutely decent surroundings and wonderfully conscientious parents. But there's a Third Parent in the home.

The children will fuss. The business of the fast-buck money-making networks is show business. They make the programs of violence, the horror shows, etc., as dramatic and mind-grIPPING as they possibly can. That's what makes this Third Parent so dangerous. In effect, they're marijuana merchants deliberately trying to keep young customers hooked—to a screen.

Let me tell you what happened when a disgraced Birmingham, Ala., friend of mine and his wife finally said, "Enough's enough," and threw out entirely their children's all-absorbing TV.

The children's school grades improved. They played outdoors more. They ate better. They slept much better. One began raising chickens—a constructive, therapeutic idea, self-generated. Another took up horsemanship. Last month he actually won the Alabama state championship in his class. The parents realized that the lives of all of them had improved remarkably. Isn't this prospect in any good home magnificently worth while?

Write the sponsor of every program you see that teaches violence. Only the companies that finance the networks can make them change. The companies will if you show companies how you feel. Meanwhile, switch off the Third Parent in your home. Keep murder out. We parents are entitled to put up a fight for the minds and dreams of our own children. Surely, we love them enough for that.

Which Figure Is Correct?

WASHINGTON—President Johnson says the budget deficit next year will be $8 billion. Republicans say it will be more than $30 billion. Who's right?

Mr. Johnson has the fiscal facts, while the Republicans have mostly educated guesses. But, based on the track record, you've got to give some credit to the GOP purveyors of bad news.

The Republicans are taking their cue from Rep. Melvin Laird (Wis.), chairman of the House GOP caucus. In December, 1966, Laird predicted a $20 billion deficit for the fiscal year that began last July 1.

Laird stuck by that prediction even when President Johnson came out with his $8.1 billion deficit budget last January. His is turning out to be very nearly right. A deficit of $18.6 billion is the latest Treasury Department estimate for the current year.

The new Laird prediction, which has been echoed by House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan and Florida

Governor Claude Kirk, is based on the general assumption that Mr. Johnson's errors will be of the same magnitude and in the same direction as they were last time.

Here's where Laird gets the $30 billion:

Bookkeeping changes—The President is talking about his new unified budget when he refers to the $8 billion deficit. Laird, talking about the old administrative budget, which didn't include the Social Security and Highway Trust funds. Because these funds are currently taking in more money than they are putting out, the Johnson budget, if figured on the old basis, would have a deficit of $11.8 billion.

Highway shuffle—Part of the trust-fund surplus comes about because of a freeze on highway projects. Laird, a staff aide explained, expects the President to unfreeze some of these projects as the election draws near. This will boost the deficit another billion or so to about $13 billion.

Tax hopes—The President assumes he'll get a tax increase. Republicans assume he won't. It will make a $12 billion difference. Now the possible deficit is $25 billion.

The grant cut—The administration last year estimated that grants to states would cost $4.1 billion. That wasn't nearly enough, and now Congress is being asked for a supplemental $1.1 billion to pay existing grant-in-aid obligations. Assume another such mistake, and the deficit soars past $26 billion.

Defense delusions—By Laird's figuring, the Vietnam war this year is going to cost $5 billion more than was budgeted. Assume another such mistake for fiscal 1969, and the new deficit comes to more than $31 billion.

Revenue miscues—The current budget overestimated income from corporation taxes by $2.5 billion according to Laird. If it happens again, along with all the other miscalculations, the deficit could be boosted to about $33.5 billion.

"At this point," explains a mathematically inclined aide, "it's just an educated guess. We'll know more when we see the detailed budget figures." That will be in a week or so.

Public Views Congress

Congress may be held in the lowest esteem in five years, as shown in the latest poll by Louis Harris, but anyone trying to find a broad reason for this view would be very much confused. For the criticisms and cheers of those polled do not jibe.

Specific criticisms of the first session of the 90th Congress were directed at failure to pass a gun control bill, cutbacks in aid to cities, failure to pass an open housing law and reductions in funds for the poverty program. The gun bill may be connected to crime in the streets. The rest may be part of the Great Society program.

But when it comes to the positive side, the public cheered refusal to pass the income tax surtax, for increasing Social Security benefits, for extending the draft and for cutting foreign aid funds. Without a surtax, there would be no funds for Great Society measures the Congress was criticized for not passing. Increasing Social Security benefits was a bi-partisan accomplishment. So was draft extension. And the cutting of foreign aid had been building up for years.

The war in Vietnam, which has been held out as the prime issue in this election year, was not even mentioned. The rules of Congress do not permit him to criticize another Congressman, so he will be careful to praise the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Texas Democrat George Mahon. However, he will criticize the operations of the committee.

"The committee operates under rules that are archaic as they are undemocratic," Joelson said in advance of his speech. "No town council in America could long get away with the procedures of this unit charged with the responsibility of spending the money of the nation."

"All hearings are closed without exception to the press and public alike. Strangely enough, the press has accepted this in a docile manner, although very few of such hearings deal with national security and require secrecy in the national interest."

The committee goes overboard, even denying its own members access to information regarding certain government bureaus such as the Central Intelligence Agency, Joelson says.

"There is simply no total, specific appropriation for the work of the CIA. Its funds are hidden or buried. While it is obvious that CIA operations must be cloaked in secrecy, this does not mean that the people of the United States or their representatives should be forbidden to know the total sum spent by the agency."

Joelson describes Chairman Mahon as a "thorough gentleman" who has backstopped himself with members having a viewpoint similar to his on the importance of military appropriations and the unimportance of human appropriations.

"The complexion of the Defense Subcommittee may well explain the fact that in 1967 it added to the main military appropriation almost a billion dollars more than requested by the President and the Defense Department," says Congressman Joelson.

But if Mahon believes that the funds for a particular program should be curtailed, he stacks the subcommittee with Congressmen unfriendly to that program.

Military vs. Health
Example: The Labor, Health and Education Subcommittee, headed by liberal Rep. Dan Flood, D-Pa., was packed with two conservative Democrats in order to give Republicans control.

Joelson also charges that members of the full committee—51 in all—receive almost no advance briefing on subcommittee reports, so that they vote in the dark.

"A feeling of fantasy assails a person who, in a period of time no longer than an hour, is expected to vote, for example, on a defense appropriation of $62 billion," says Joelson. "Although it may be a heady experience to be spending $1 billion per minute, it is also a most discouraging one."

"In an age when planning is widely thought to be desirable, there is no over-all plan for allocating funds for the widespread operations of our national government. In a nation which prides itself on being the brightest example of democracy, there is no real democracy in the body established within Congress for spending the people's money.

"Rules and procedures of another century remain entrenched. This is the way we appropriate in Congress. The question before the House is: Is this appropriate in 1968?"

It will be interesting to see whether Congressman Joelson is gavelled down by Speaker McCormack or allowed to tell the American taxpayers the truth.

Reversing McNamara

Word of Secretary McNamara's resignation had scarcely reached Saigon before the American military command quietly sidetracked his plan to reorganize the South Vietnamese army.

He wanted to train mobile Vietnamese striking forces, which could take over more of the fighting and permit American troops to begin a gradual withdrawal. The plan was first proposed in 1965 but was rejected by the U.S. commanders, who didn't want to resupply the Vietnamese with any additional sophisticated weapons.

More important, they didn't want to admit that their 12-year training program had been a failure. They had trained the South Vietnamese army for old-fashioned warfare and, as a result, Vietnamese troops had trouble adapting to guerrilla warfare.

The American generals still insist that after the American withdrawal the biggest threat will be an invasion from North Vietnam. They want to leave a conventional South Vietnamese army. This suits the Vietnamese generals, who would lose much of their power under the reorganization plan. Therefore they, too, resisted any overhaul of their army.

McNamara overruled all these objections last July and ordered the retraining of Vietnamese battalions to begin at once. The program, just getting underway, has now come to a stop—after news of McNamara's departure.

Henry J. Taylor Says

TV Today Is Prime Cause of Crime

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The intelligent thing for parents to do today, of course, is to switch off all violent TV—the Third Parent in your home—until the moguls running the fast-buck money machines know as NBC, CBS and ABC show some conscience.

Their Neanderthal standards are destroying parental influence with a hit as powerful and smooth as the three-inch jab made famous by Joe Louis.

How on earth can conscientious mothers and fathers face this dreadful competition in the upbringing of the children? Millions of impressionable children spend more time at the feet of this Third Parent, TV, than they do listening to their parents. And the dreadful competition only starts with that insidious fact.

We pay incredible sums and carry enormous public burdens to educate our children. I, for one, am totally on fire about the need for education, and countless conscientious parents sacrifice a very great deal to provide it for their children. They are responsible for and support. Yet millions of these same children spend more time at the feet of the TV set than in school. And the villainy they're taught they are performing.

The proof? As this column recently pointed out, the current FBI Crime Report officially states that 40 per cent of all serious crimes now involve boys and girls under 18. And I know of no independent investigator, and certainly not the FBI or the mayor of a single major city in the United States, who does not agree that television today is a prime cause of crime.

We spend additional vast sums on preaching better nutrition. If what goes into children's stomachs is so important, how about what goes into their minds?

When you realize the repetition, repetition, repetition of this TV diet—morning, noon and night, years on end—how can parents safely permit this Third Parent to take over?

This is the most powerful medium any civilization ever had. The combination of hearing and seeing something at the same time, right at home, is unlike in all history. The unprecedented power is so enormous that the networks urge advertisers to spend billions to use it. Our children are not affected? The NBC, CBS, ABC moguls have a colossal nerve to tell us that. If this isn't double-talk, what is?

Children imitate what they see and hear, as every parent knows. The Third Parent in the home is teaching them by repetition, repetition, repetition to expect violence and to seek it. And, remember, again, the villainy they're taught they are performing. Nothing is more dangerous than to assume your own children will remain exempt.

We're constantly told that juvenile delinquents and teenage criminals are the products of poverty; that they come from poverty-stricken, so-called underprivileged homes. In simple truth, an astounding proportion come from absolutely decent surroundings and wonderfully conscientious parents. But there's a Third Parent in the home.

The children will fust. The business of the fast-buck money-making networks is show business. They make the programs of violence, the horror shows, etc., as dramatic and mind-grIPPING as they possibly can. That's what makes this Third Parent so dangerous. In effect, they're marijuana merchants deliberately trying to keep young customers hooked—to a screen.

Let me tell you what happened when a disgusted Birmingham, Ala., friend of mine and his wife finally said, "Enough's enough," and threw out entirely their children's all-absorbing TV.

The children's school grades improved. They played outdoors more. They ate better. They slept much better. One began raising chickens—a constructive, therapeutic idea, self-generated. Another took up horsemanship. Last month he actually won the Alabama state championship in his class. The parents realized that the lives of all of them had improved remarkably. Isn't this prospect in any good home magnificently worth while?

Write the sponsor of every program you see that teaches violence. Only the companies that finance the networks can make them change. The companies will if you show companies how you feel. Meanwhile, switch off the Third Parent in your home. Keep murder out. We parents are entitled to put up a fight for the minds and dreams of our own children. Surely, we love them enough for that.

Which Figure Is Correct?

By PHILIP MEYER
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON—President Johnson says the budget deficit next year will be $8 billion. Republicans say it will be more than $30 billion. Who's right?

Mr. Johnson has the fiscal facts, while the Republicans have mostly educated guesses. But, based on the track record, you've got to give some credit to the GOP purveyors of bad news.

The Republicans are taking their cue from Rep. Melvin Laird (Wis.), chairman of the House GOP caucus. In December, 1966, Laird predicted a $20 billion deficit for the fiscal year that began last July 1.

Laird stuck by that prediction even when President Johnson came out with his $8.1 billion deficit budget last January. His is turning out to be very nearly right. A deficit of $18.6 billion is the latest Treasury Department estimate for the current year.

The new Laird prediction, which has been echoed by House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan and Florida

Governor Claude Kirk, is based on the general assumption that Mr. Johnson's errors will be of the same magnitude and in the same direction as they were last time.

Here's where Laird gets the $30 billion.

Bookkeeping changes—The President is talking about his new unified budget when he refers to the $8 billion deficit. Laird is talking about the old administrative budget, which didn't include the Social Security and Highway Trust funds. Because these funds are currently taking in more money than they are putting out, the Johnson budget, if figured on the old basis would have a deficit of $11.8 billion.

Highway shuffle—Part of the trust-fund surplus comes about because of a freeze on highway projects. Laird, a staff aide explained, expects the President to unfreeze some of these projects as the election draws near. This will boost the deficit another billion or so to about $13 billion.

Tax hopes—The President assumes he'll get a tax increase. Republicans assume he won't. It will make a $12 billion difference. Now the possible deficit is $25 billion.

The grant caper—The administration last year estimated that grants to states would cost $4.1 billion. That wasn't nearly enough, and now Congress is being asked for a supplemental $1.1 billion to pay existing grant-in-aid obligations. Assume another such mistake, and the deficit soars past $26 billion.

Defense delusions—By Laird's figuring, the Vietnam war this year is going to cost $5 billion more than was budgeted. Assume another such mistake for fiscal 1969, and the new deficit comes to more than $31 billion.

Revenue miscues—The current budget overestimated income from corporation taxes by $2.5 billion according to Laird. If it happens again, along with all the other miscalculations, the deficit could be boosted to about $33.5 billion.

"At this point," explains a mathematically inclined aide, "it's just an educated guess. We'll know more when we see the detailed budget figures." That will be in a week or so.

City Beat

IS POLITICS really for the birds? One might think so with all the headlines about hawks and doves over Vietnam. Kingstons recently joined the bird parade, adding a pigeon.

Bob Gallo, alderman-at-large, a frequent visitor to city hall where many pigeons roost, referred to Republican John Machione as a "fluttering pigeon, flying without a purpose."

That type of bird appears to be in the same class as a fluttering dove, Joe Resnick's label for Senator Javits. But those that live by the bird eventually die by the bird as witnessed by Manhattan's Assemblyman Albert Blumenthal referring to Resnick as a "bleating hawk."

Has Edge

It appears Resnick has the edge in the battle of birds. Hawks are generally considered war birds, doves are love birds and any janitor at city hall can tell you what pigeons do.

NOW ON TO the budget. We can't really fault Mayor Garraghan for his anger over Republican criticism of his budget. However, Ray is not as thin-skinned as most people think. He usually takes criticism with a grain of salt.

We're thinking of the time he received a drawing of an elephant wearing a sweater with GOP on it. The caption said, "Ray Garraghan, you don't know what you are." The mayor has the drawing hanging in his office.

Garraghan didn't laugh off the Republican criticism. He felt it questioned his integrity. He could take remarks like John Naccarato's that the budget was too high, but Machione's statement that there was fat in the budget, 10 per cent worth of fat, was too much for Garraghan.

Add the facts that Garraghan rushed out to New Hampshire

Thursday to be with his sick daughter, returned to Kingston with a good dose of the flu and lay in bed for four days and you can see why his temper was shorter than usual.

If he does veto the budget it could throw city government into a cocked hat. At last count the city had about $100,000 left from a tax anticipation note drawn in December. An $80,000 payroll is due at the end of the month, leaving the city with the equivalent of petty cash to work with.

Passing a budget over a veto could prove time consuming and futile if the Republicans stick to their guns. Nine votes are needed. The Democrats have but eight.

However, by the time this column is published, the mayor will have had four days of rest and a probable change of heart on the veto.

Democrats seem to do their celebrating separately. Dr. Gorman, county chairman, was feted with a testimonial dinner in Woodstock and city dems were conspicuous by their absence. The event was reportedly "sold out" before invitations could be sent to Kingston leaders.

No tickets were sold to the city Democratic Committee celebration at Post 150 American Legion Thursday night. Bud Lyle had been installed as chairman a week earlier due to inclement weather, the party was delayed. A good time was had by all. All the city Democrats, that is. We didn't see a soul from the county.

There was one Republican in the crowd: former Freeman city editor and Kingston alderman-at-large Joe Kelly. Joe appears to be enjoying the retired life. Kids people about having to get up in the morning for work.

Hall Marks—With Duke Miller's retirement the American flag doesn't get the same loving care it used to. Charlie Cole of the BPW spotted Old Glory flying at 10 p. m. one night at City Hall. She's supposed to come down at sunset. Duke never forgot.

Main Points for Filing Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE—It is that time of year again—income tax return time. What to do? How to fill out the form? What to look for? The following first of five articles on what to know about filing out your income tax forms answers many of your perplexing questions.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here are some main points about filing your income tax return on 1967 income.

Deadline: Midnight, Monday, April 15. List your Social Security number on your return, if you have one. There's a penalty for failing to.

Enclose with your return all W-2 withholding receipts given you by employers to show how much tax was withheld from your pay last year.

If too much was withheld, you can get a refund but only by filing a return.

Here are other points:

Income—Some kinds are taxable, some not. Report only the taxable kind on your return.

Some taxable income: wages, salaries, bonuses, commissions, fees, tips, dividends, interest on savings accounts and U.S. savings bonds, profits from business, rents, royalties, prizes and awards when you did something to win them.

Some nontaxable income: Social Security, gifts, inheritances, bequests, life insurance payments on death, dividends on veterans insurance, disability retirement payments and other benefits paid by the Veterans Administration, workmen's compensation insurance, damages for injury or death, and Railroad Retirement Act benefits.

Who must file a return? You must, whether or not you owe any tax, if you had $600 or more taxable income last year and were under 65 ($1,200 if you were 65 or older). The same goes for your wife.

You were considered 65 for all of 1967 if your 65th birthday was as late as Jan. 1, 1968. Children with $600 or more of the taxable kind of income must file a return. Parents are responsible for doing it if the child can't.

Self-employed—You must file a return, no matter your age, if your 1967 self-employment income was $400 or more. Use Form 1040 and Schedule C for this.

Joint or separate returns? Husbands and wives usually save by filing jointly, even if the wife had no income.

An under-65 wife with $600 or more taxable income ($1,200 if 65 or older) must file a return, either jointly with her husband or separately. If in doubt on which to do, try both ways before deciding.

If a wife files separately, she claims her own exemption on her return and her husband claims his exemptions on his return. When filing jointly, they must claim all their exemptions on that one return.

The Exemptions

Exemptions—Each exemption you can claim means that much ($600) knocked off your income before what's left is taxable.

Anyone filing a return gets a $600 exemption for himself if he was under 65 ($1,200 if 65 or older).

You get a $600 exemption for your wife if she was under 65 ($1,200 if 65 or older) but only if she files jointly with you or, if she had no taxable income, fails to file jointly and is not claimed as a dependent by someone else.

While an under-65 wife with less than $600 income (or less than $1,200 if 65 or older) is not required to file a return, if she had any taxable income at all, no matter how small, the husband can not claim an exemption for her unless she files jointly with him.

The person filing a return gets an extra $600 exemption for himself if he was blind in 1967 and an extra $600 exemption for his wife if she was blind. Remember: a wife is not considered a dependent.

Exemptions for dependents—Anyone filing a return also gets a $600 exemption for each dependent he can rightfully claim. But he gets no extra $600 for a blind dependent and no extra $600 because a dependent was 65 or older.

Social Security tax and income—under or over 65—and even though you are receiving Social Security payments—you must pay a Social Security tax on any taxable earned income.

Deductions—Anyone filing a return can deduct a certain amount of his income, before what's left is taxable, for some kinds of personal expenses. There are two basic rules.

There's the standard deduction, which the government lets anyone take, even though it may be larger than actual expenses. You can take this without having to show what your expenses were by listing them. Or, if your deductible expenses were more than the standard deduction permits, you can claim them in full but only if you itemize them to prove you had them. In this case you must use Form 1040 and figure your own tax.

Finding Your Tax

How to find your tax—You find it in the tax table or figure it yourself. The tax table is in the instruction sheet sent all taxpayers by the Internal Revenue Service. Not all people can use it.

Only those with under $5,000 income can use the table, and not all of them. If they can't use it, they must figure their own tax by using one of the tax rate schedules which are also in the IRS instruction sheet.

People with $5,000 or more income must figure their own tax from the tax rate schedules.

What tax form to use—There are two main forms: 1040 and 1040A. The latter, a punchcard, is simpler. Briefly, here are the rules:

1. Only under-$10,000 income people can use 1040A. And not all of them can. You must fit certain conditions to use it. More on this later in this series.

2. People with $10,000 or more income must use 1040. So must the under-$10,000 people who can't use 1040A. And so must people itemizing their deductions.

For Servicemen

Servicemen—There are special rules for military people who served in Vietnam.

1. An enlisted man's pay doesn't have to be reported and is tax-free for any part of a month in which he served in Vietnam and its adjacent waters or was hospitalized anywhere as a result of wounds, disease, or injury incurred in Vietnam or those adjacent waters.

2. A commissioned officer is also exempt from 1967 tax on the first $500 of pay for any month under the same conditions explained above for enlisted men.

Information—The information given in this series is limited by length. If you need more, consult the IRS instruction sheet or, for 50 cents, buy the government's 160-page booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax," from the nearest IRS office or from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

We've also been talking about how you get more for your money than ever. For instance, 40% of the New York State calls you paid long distance charges for ten years ago are now local calls.

And now there's more to tell. We've cut the one-time charge for color phones in half, from $10 to $5. And we're offering Home Econ-O-Call service, a new bargain plan that can save you money on calls within New York State.

Besides all that, you get low night rates on interstate calls an hour earlier, at 7 p.m. And all weekend long till 7 a.m. Monday—60 straight hours. And evening rates on interstate calls begin an hour earlier, at 5 p.m. There's also a special midnight-to-7 a.m. rate every night: you can call anywhere in the country for 75¢ or less, if you dial the call yourself.*

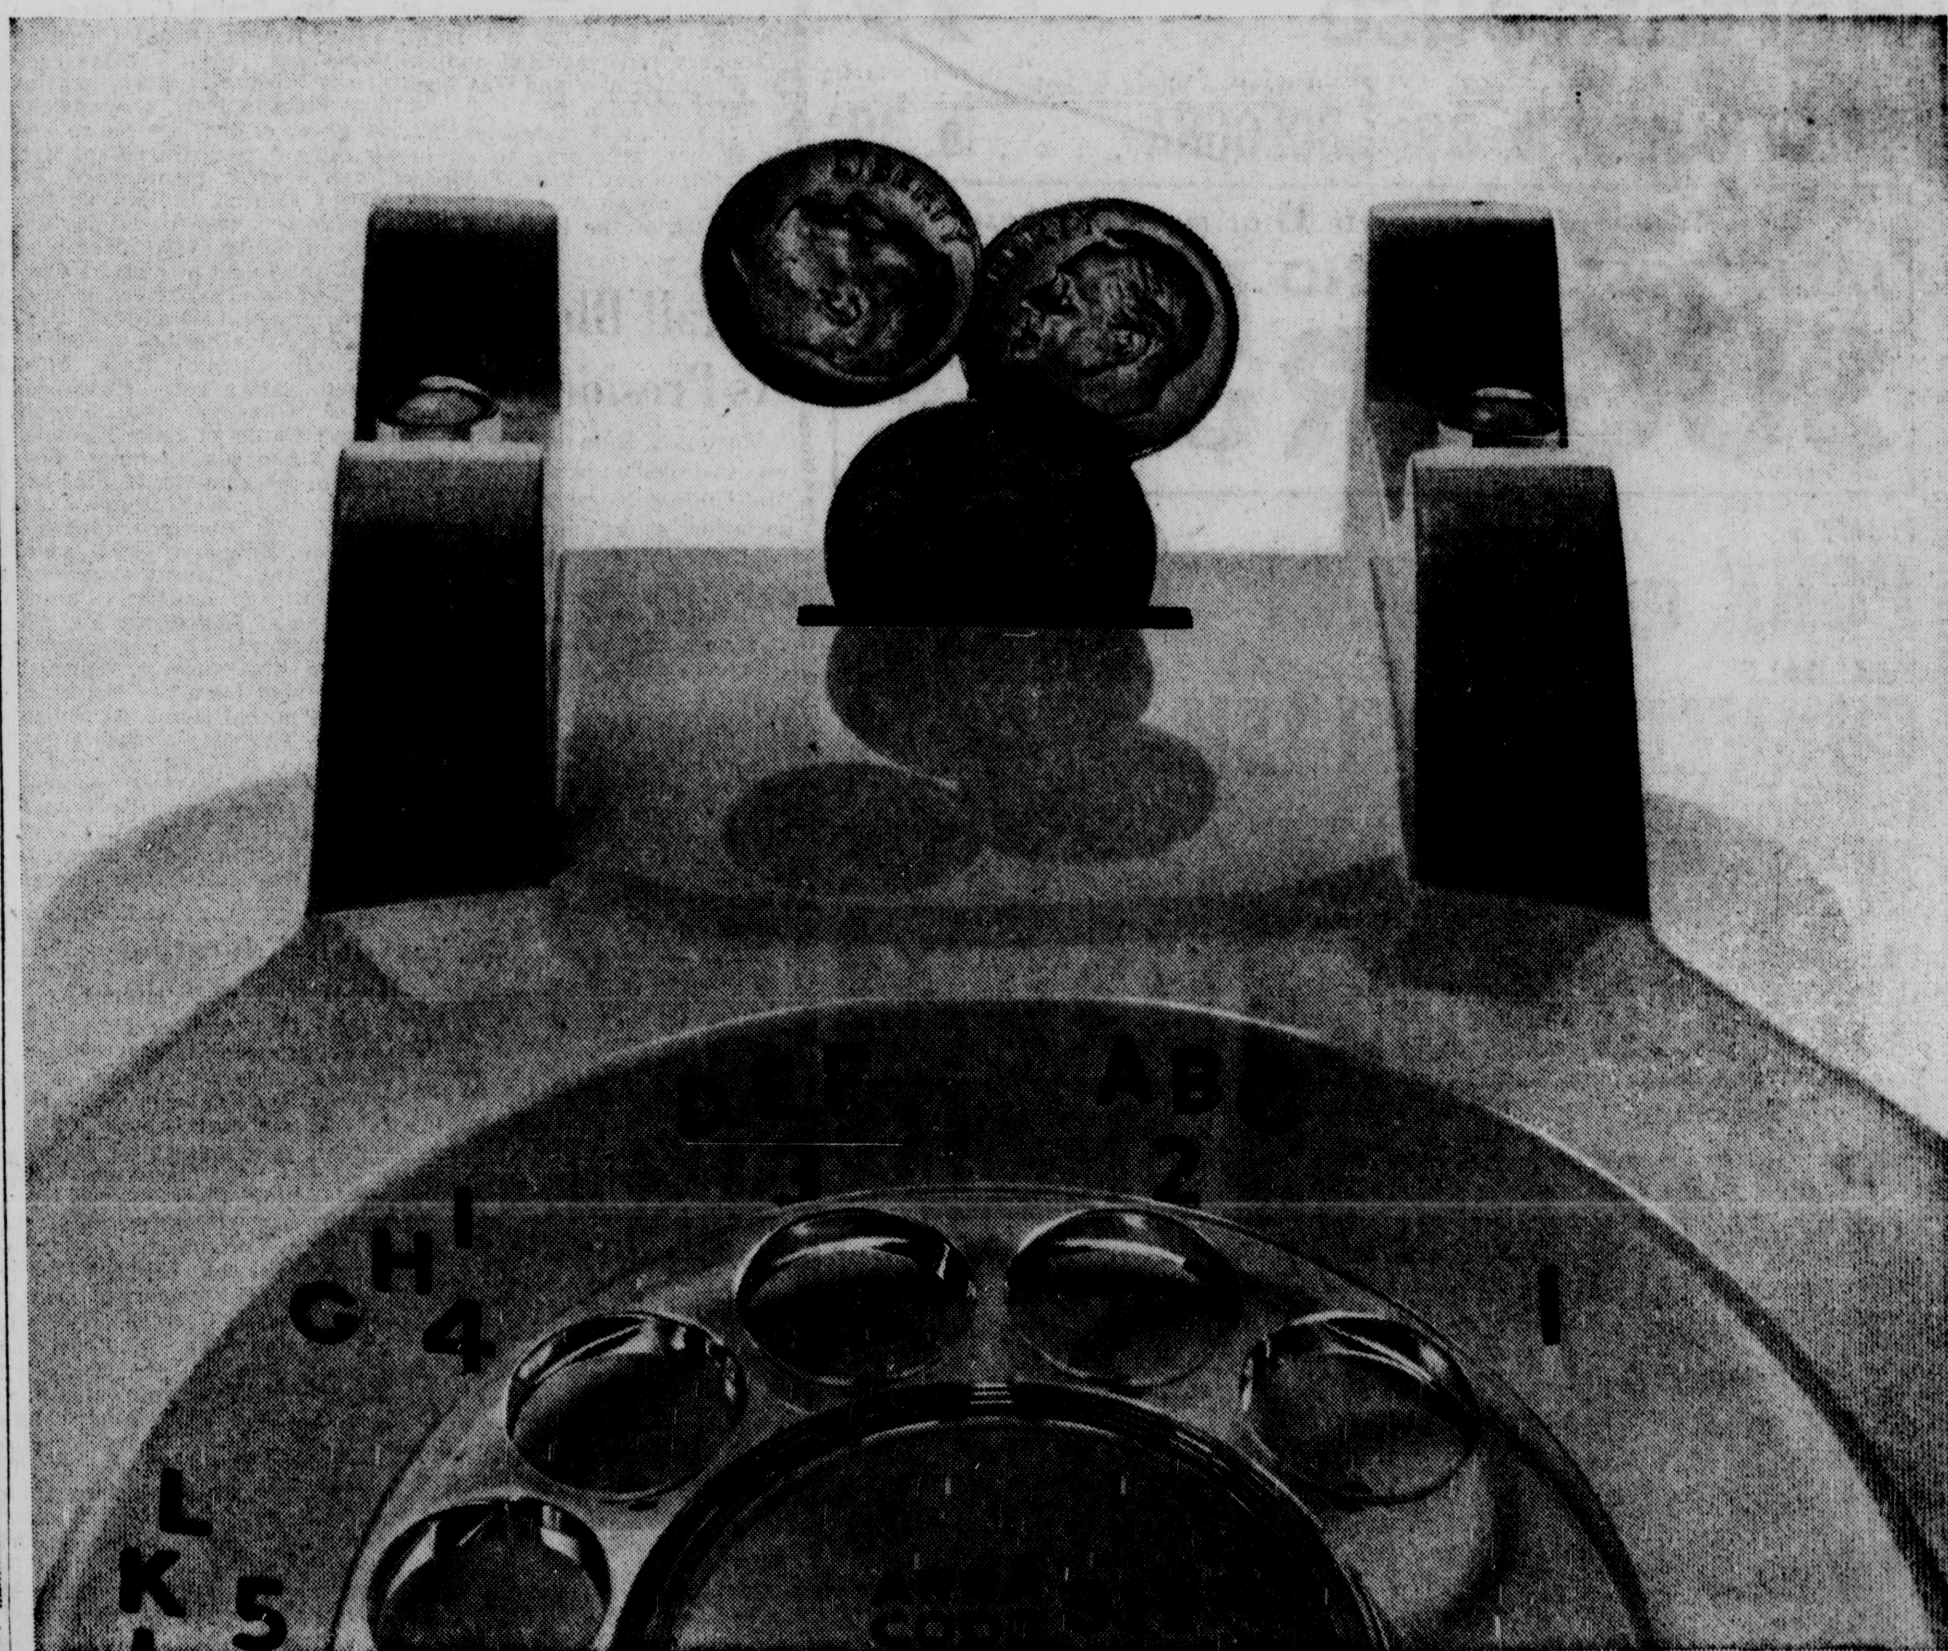

When you can talk about bargains like these while just about everything else seems to be going up, that's not bad. If talk is cheap, blame it on the phone company.

Joint or separate returns? Husbands and wives usually save by filing jointly, even if the wife had no income.

An under-65 wife with $600 or more taxable income ($1,200 if 65 or older) must file a return, either jointly with her husband or separately. If in doubt on which to do, try both ways before deciding.

If a wife files separately, she claims her own exemption on her return and her husband claims his exemptions on his return. When filing jointly, they must claim all their exemptions on that one return.

The Exemptions

Exemptions—Each exemption you can claim means that much $600 knocked off your income before what's left is taxable. Anyone filing a return gets a $600 exemption for himself if he was under 65 ($1,200 if 65 or older).

You get a $600 exemption for your wife if she was under 65 ($1,200 if 65 or older) but only if she files jointly with you or, if she had no taxable income, fails to file jointly and is not claimed as a dependent by someone else.

While an under-65 wife with less than $600 income (or less than $1,200 if 65 or older) is not required to file a return, if she had any taxable income at all, no matter how small, the husband can not claim an exemption for her unless she files jointly with him.

The person filing a return gets an extra $600 exemption for himself if he was blind in 1967 and an extra $600 exemption for his wife if she was blind. Remember: a wife is not considered a dependent.

Exemptions for dependents—Anyone filing a return also gets a $600 exemption for each dependent he can rightfully claim. But he gets no extra $600 for a blind dependent and no extra $600 because a dependent was 65 or older.

Social Security tax and income—under or over 65—and even though you are receiving Social Security payments—you must pay a Social Security tax on any taxable earned income.

Deductions—Anyone filing a return can deduct a certain amount of his income, before what's left is taxable, for some kinds of personal expenses. There are two basic rules.

There's the standard deduction, which the government lets anyone take, even though it may be larger than actual expenses. You can take this without having to show what your expenses were by listing them.

Or, if your deductible expenses were more than the standard deduction permits, you can claim them in full but only if you itemize them to prove you had them. In this case you must use Form 1040 and figure your own tax.

Finding Your Tax

How to find your tax—You find it in the tax table or figure it yourself. The tax table is in the instruction sheet sent all taxpayers by the Internal Revenue Service. Not all people can use it.

Only those with under $5,000 income can use the table, and not all of them. If they can't use it, they must figure their own tax by using one of the tax rate schedules which are also in the IRS instruction sheet.

People with $5,000 or more income must figure their own tax from the tax rate schedules.

What tax form to use—There are two main forms: 1040 and 1040A. The latter, a punchcard, is simpler. Briefly, here are the rules:

1. Only under-$10,000 income people can use 1040A. And not all of them can. You must fit certain conditions to use it. More on this later in this series.

2. People with $10,000 or more income must use 1040. So must the under-$10,000 people who can't use 1040A. And so must people itemizing their deductions.

For Servicemen

Servicemen—There are special rules for military people who served in Vietnam.

1. An enlisted man's pay doesn't have to be reported and is tax-free for any part of a month in which he served in Vietnam and its adjacent waters or was hospitalized anywhere as a result of wounds, disease, or injury incurred in Vietnam or those adjacent waters.

2. A commissioned officer is also exempt from 1967 tax on the first $500 of pay for any month under the same conditions explained above for enlisted men.

Information—The information given in this series is limited by length. If you need more, consult the IRS instruction sheet or, for 50 cents, buy the government's 160-page booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax," from the nearest IRS office or from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Lately, we've been talking to you about how valuable your phone is, and how little it costs to have one in your home: less than a quarter a day.

We've also been talking about how you get more for your money than ever. For instance, 40% of the New York State calls you paid long distance charges for ten years ago are now local calls.

And now there's more to tell. We've cut the one-time charge for color phones in half, from $10 to $5. And we're offering Home Econ-O-Call service, a new bargain plan that can save you money on calls within New York State.

Besides all that, you get low night rates on interstate calls an hour earlier, at 7 p.m. And all weekend long till 7 a.m. Monday — 60 straight hours. And evening rates on interstate calls begin an hour earlier, at 5 p.m. There's also a special midnight-to-7 a.m. rate every night: you can call anywhere in the country for 75¢ or less, if you dial the call yourself.*

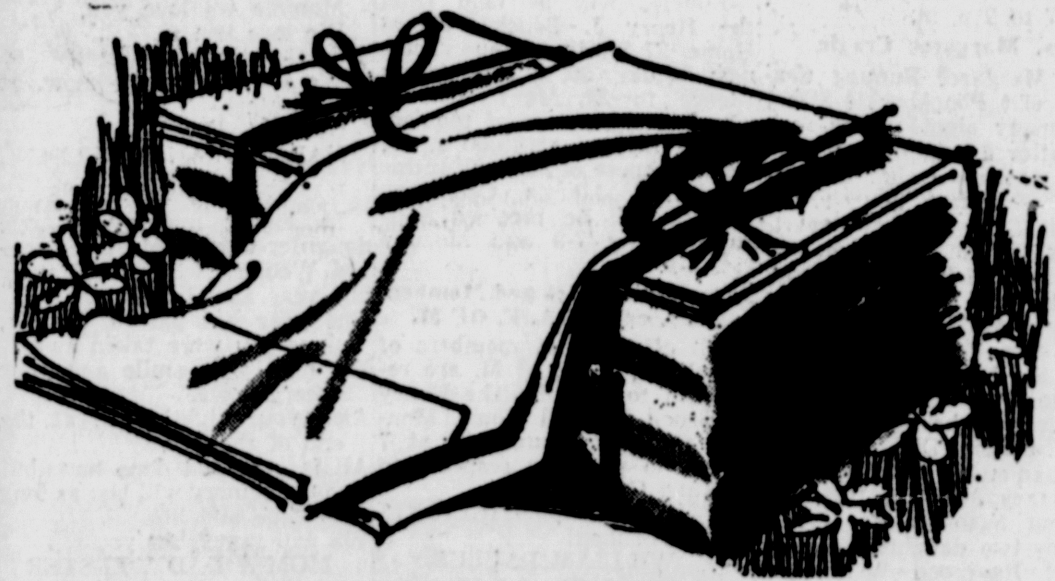

When you can talk about bargains like these while just about everything else seems to be going up, that's not bad. If talk is cheap, blame it on the phone company.

*That's for a three-minute, station-to-station call anywhere in the U.S. (except Alaska and Hawaii), plus tax.

Charge, he will have to ask an increase.

Credit—A possible squeeze on the supply of mortgage credit, perhaps enough to damage the housing recovery, is seen in a proposed curtailment of the Federal National Mortgage Association, The FNMA's mortgage purchases—which funnel money into the hands of mortgage lenders—would be cut from this year's $2.3 billion to less than $1 billion in 1968.

Housing—In an apparent effort to offset the FNMA squeeze, Johnson recommended elimination of the 6 per cent ceiling on interest rates on mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration and guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

That would permit higher mortgage interest rates, raising the cost to homebuyers. But it might attract more investment funds into the mortgage market.

A Frugal Budget

Johnson loaded his message with assurances to Congress that his budget is a barebones spending blueprint, a frugal enough to justify the House Ways and Means Committee in reviving consideration of the surtax. The committee recently shelved the tax plan for the third time, waiting to see this budget.

Johnson called on Congress to help him "cut out lower priority programs," and he devoted 2½ pages to a listing of entrenched but less-essential programs which he said should be slashed.

Setting priorities and cutting activities "is a difficult and painful task," Johnson said, adding:

"But it is also a duty. I ask the Congress and the American people to help me carry out that duty."

"Even after a rigorous screening of priorities, however, the cost of meeting our most pressing defense and civilian requirements cannot be responsibly financed without a temporary tax increase."

"One way or the other we will be taxed," he said. "We can choose to accept the arbitrary and capricious tax levied by inflation, and high interest rates, and the likelihood of a deteriorating balance of payments, and the threat of an economic bust at the end of the boom."

"Or, we can choose the path of responsibility."

Many of the proposed cuts would require legislation, and most were deep enough to assure heated opposition when they start through the congressional mill.

Included were merchant ship construction, to be cut $156 million from the authorized 1969 level; federal outlays for college academic facilities, construction, to be cut $83 million; other education and health programs, to be cut $176 million; farm operating loans, to be cut $50 million; rural electrification loans, to be cut $45 million.

Slash Agency Funds

A slash of $230 million in space agency funds was urged. Nevertheless Johnson promised an aggressive space program to reach the goal of a man on the moon by 1970 and develop a "new spacecraft for launch in 1973 to orbit and land on Mars."

On the up side, about $3.3 billion of the $10.4 billion budget increase would go into the military budget, Johnson said, producing an over-all national defense outlay of $79.8 billion. The latter figure includes not only the Pentagon's $76.7 billion but indirect defense outlays in the atomic energy, stockpile and other programs.

Another $3.9 billion increase reflects enlarged Social Security, Medicare and other social insurance benefits. About $1.6 billion reflects the government pay increase voted by Congress last year.

Hold Interest Charges

Steadily climbing interest charges on the federal debt will add $900 million to the taxpayers' costs, bringing the total interest outlay to $14.4 billion.

The President listed several other "high priority" domestic programs for which selective increases are recommended, even as less urgent programs are to be cut. These were among the increases:

Job and manpower training, up $230 million to $202 billion.

The model cities attack on slum conditions, up $225 million to $250 million.

Crime control, including safe streets legislation, up $63.2 million.

Health care for mothers and infants, and family planning, up $46 million to $269 million.

Air and water pollution control, up $69 million to $18.8 million.

Research in improved methods of teacher training, up $23 million to $99 million.

Johnson also proposed a pageful of "reforms" of going programs—changes which he estimated could save $1.24 billion from authorized programs in fiscal 1969 and more than that in 1970.

The reforms included:

—A curb on farm conservation outlays of the Agriculture Department, worth $120 million a year.

—Tightening criteria for school aid in federally impacted areas, to save $100 million.

—Imposing new or higher taxes on users of airways, waterways and highways, to trim $286 million in 1969 from governmental support of transportation services.

—Eliminating $107 million a year from various veterans' benefits.

—Applying "more equitable and rigorous criteria" for the granting of federal disaster loans by the Small Business Administration.

The curb on SBA followed the recent disclosure by The Associated Press of official scrutiny given to disaster loans made to a Democratic party leader and motel owner in Fairbanks, Alaska.

The "unified budget" concept is intended to reflect the full stimulative or depressive effect of federal taxing and spending, to eliminate the confusion of rival budget concepts and to put an end to charges of "budget gimmickry."

Many Changes

Some spectacular changes in agency rankings, as measured by budget power, have occurred.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, a robust $11.7 billion last year, now is a $45.8 billion giant rivaling the Defense Department, because it handles Social Security and Medicare.

And the fledgling department of Transportation with a mere $1.4 billion last year, is now a $6.3 billion agency because of the highway trust fund.

Financial and Commercial

BY ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The

stock market advanced early today, reassured that the Pueblo crisis got no worse over the weekend. Trading was active.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 5 to 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.22 to 869.28.

Gains of fractions to a point or so peppered the list of key stocks.

Freeport Sulphur and Westinghouse Electric advanced nearly 2 points each.

Up a point or so were Sun Chemical, General Dynamics, Raytheon, American Smelting, Kennecott, Du Pont, Owens-Illinois and Schering.

United Air Lines dropped a point.

The aerospace defense stocks were mostly higher but showed no unusual strength.

A string of fractional gains was displayed by the leading steels, motors, rubbers and farm implements.

A fairly bright business outlook plus a need for a technical recovery after a long decline provided incentive for the market to overcome uncertainties on the international scene, brokers said.

College Offers Tech Writing

Ulster County Community College will offer an evening course in technical writing during spring semester because of the growing need for technical writing training.

The course will meet Monday nights from 7 to 8:50 p. m. starting Feb. 5 at the College's Kingston classroom building 214 West Chestnut Street.

With science and technology making such rapid strides in the space age, there is an increased use of technical writing today. Technical writing can be applied to many subjects, including drugs, atomic energy, air conditioning, transportation, computers and farm equipment.

Currently more and more technical writing is being done for manuals, handbooks, reports, and articles, with increased attention being given to this specialty.

The course will consider the problems of presenting technical subject matter and will provide instruction and practice in technical writing and reporting.

Interested persons can register at the college's Stone Ridge campus from 6 to 9 p. m. on Thursday, Feb. 1, and 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturday, Feb. 3. Advisors will be present to answer questions concerning the course.

Escapes Injury

Fidel to Try Old Bolsheviks, Foes of Action

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban Communist party, in a new show of divergence from Moscow, is putting on trial nine Old Bolsheviks who opposed Prime Minister Fidel Castro's policy of exporting guerrilla revolutions to the rest of Latin America.

The purge, announced Sunday after a three-day meeting of the party's central committee, also caught two members of the committee but there was no indication they would be put on trial. They were Jose Matar, former chief of the two-million-member network of informers and local vigilantes known as the Committee for the Defense of the Revolution, and Ramon Calcinas, head of the fruit industry.

The nine men who will be tried by a revolutionary tribunal were headed by Anibal Escalante, one of the party's three top leaders before Castro took it over. Escalante lost out in a power struggle six years ago.

Informed sources said Escalante was certain to be accused of treason when he was put on trial.

A communique charged Escalante's group with "intrigues," distributing propaganda against the party, giving false information to foreign officials to damage Cuban foreign relations and possessing secret documents of the committee of Basic Industries.

The group's position aided the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the committee said, and "pseudo-revolutionaries of Latin America"—the regime's phrase for Communists who have turned their backs on Castro's policy of open insurrection.

The two ousted central committee members were accused of involvement with Escalante. The communique also said there had been an antigovernment faction in Fruiticuba, the state export company which Calcinas headed.

The central committee also declared solidarity with North Korea over the seizure of the USS Pueblo and announced that it would not send a delegation to the world meeting of Communists arranged by the Soviet Union in Budapest this month.

Credit—A possible squeeze on the supply of mortgage credit, perhaps enough to damage the housing recovery, is seen in a proposed curtailment of the Federal National Mortgage Association. The FNMA's mortgage purchases—which funnel money into the hands of mortgage lenders—would be cut from this year's $2.3 billion to less than $1 billion in 1968.

Housing—In an apparent effort to offset the FNMA squeeze, Johnson recommended elimination of the 6 per cent ceiling on interest rates on mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration and guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

That would permit higher mortgage interest rates, raising the cost to homebuyers. But it might attract more investment funds into the mortgage market.

A Frugal Budget

Johnson loaded his message with assurances to Congress that his budget is a barebones spending blueprint, frugal enough to justify the House Ways and Means Committee in reviving consideration of the surtax. The committee recently shelved the tax plan for the third time, waiting to see this budget.

Johnson called on Congress to help him "cut out lower priority programs," and he devoted 2½ pages to a listing of entrenched but less-essential programs which he said should be slashed.

Setting priorities and cutting activities "is a difficult and painful task," Johnson said, adding: "But it is also a duty. I ask the Congress and the American people to help me carry out that duty."

"Even after a rigorous screening of priorities, however, the cost of meeting our most pressing defense and civilian requirements cannot be responsibly financed without a temporary tax increase. "One way or the other we will be taxed," he said. "We can choose to accept the arbitrary and capricious tax levied by inflation, and high interest rates, and the likelihood of a deteriorating balance of payments, and the threat of an economic bust at the end of the boom. "Or, we can choose the path of responsibility."

Many of the proposed cuts would require legislation, and most were deep enough to assure heated opposition when they start through the congressional mill.

Included were merchant ship construction, to be cut $156 million from the authorized 1969 level; federal outlays for college academic facilities; construction, to be cut $83 million; other education and health programs, to be cut $176 million; farm operating loans, to be cut $50 million; rural electrification loans, to be cut $45 million.

Slash Agency Funds

A slash of $230 million in space agency funds was urged. Nevertheless Johnson promised an aggressive space program to reach the goal of a man on the moon by 1970 and develop a "new spacecraft for launch in 1973 to orbit and land on Mars."

On the up side, about $3.3 billion of the $10.4 billion budget increase would go into the military budget, Johnson said, producing an over-all national defense outlay of $79.8 billion. The latter figure includes not only the Pentagon's $76.7 billion but indirect defense outlays in the atomic energy, stockpile and other programs.

Another $3.9 billion increase reflects enlarged Social Security, medicare and other social insurance benefits. About $1.6 billion reflects the government pay increase voted by Congress last year.

Hold Interest Charges

Steadily climbing interest charges on the federal debt will add $900 million to the taxpayers' costs, bringing the total interest outlay to $14.4 billion.

The President listed several other "high priority" domestic programs for which selective increases are recommended, even as less urgent programs are to be cut. These were among the increases:

Job and manpower training, up $230 million to $202 billion.

The model cities attack on slum conditions, up $225 million to $250 million.

Crime control, including safe streets legislation, up $63.2 million.

Health care for mothers and infants, and family planning, up $46 million to $269 million.

Air and water pollution control, up $69 million to $18.8 million.

Research in improved methods of teacher training, up $23 million to $99 million.

Johnson also proposed a pageful of "reforms" of going programs—changes which he estimated could save $1.24 billion from authorized programs in fiscal 1969 and more than that in 1970.

The reforms included:

—A curb on farm conservation outlays of the Agriculture Department, worth $120 million a year.

—Tightening criteria for school aid in federally impacted areas, to save $100 million.

—Imposing new or higher taxes on users of airways, waterways and highways, to trim $286 million in 1969 from governmental support of transportation services.

—Eliminating $107 million a year from various veterans' benefits.

—Applying "more equitable and rigorous criteria" for the granting of federal disaster loans by the Small Business Administration.

The curb on SBA followed the recent disclosure by The Associated Press of official scrutiny given to disaster loans made to a Democratic party leader and motel owner in Fairbanks, Alaska.

The "unified budget" concept is intended to reflect the full stimulative or depressive effect of federal taxing and spending, to eliminate the confusion of rival budget concepts and to put an end to charges of "budget gimmickry."

Many Changes

Some spectacular changes in agency rankings, as measured by budget power, have occurred.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, a robust $11.7 billion last year, now is a $45.8 billion giant rivaling the Defense Department, because it handles Social Security and medicare.

And the fledgling department of Transportation with a mere $1.4 billion last year is now a $6.3 billion agency because of the highway trust fund.

Financial and Commercial

BY ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced early today, reassured that the Pueblo crisis got no worse over the weekend. Trading was active.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 5 to 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.22 to 869.28.

Gains of fractions to a point or so peppered the list of key stocks.

Freeport Sulphur and Westinghouse Electric advanced nearly 2 points each.

Up a point or so were Sun Chemical, General Dynamics, Raytheon, American Smelting, Kennecott, Du Pont, Owens-Illinois and Schering.

United Air Lines dropped a point.

The aerospace defense stocks were mostly higher but showed no unusual strength.

A string of fractional gains was displayed by the leading steels, motors, rubbers and farm implements.

A fairly bright business outlook plus a need for a technical recovery after a long decline provided incentive for the market to overcome uncertainties on the international scene, brokers said.

College Offers Tech Writing

Ulster County Community College will offer an evening course in technical writing during spring semester because of the growing need for technical writing training.

The course will meet Monday nights from 7 to 8:30 p. m. starting Feb. 5 at the College's Kingston classroom building 214 West Chestnut Street.

With science and technology making such rapid strides in the space age, there is an increased use of technical writing today. Technical writing can be applied to many subjects, including drugs, atomic energy, air conditioning, transportation, computers and farm equipment.

Currently more and more technical writing is being done for manuals, handbooks, reports and articles with increased attention being given to this specialty.

The course will consider the problems of presenting technical subject matter and will provide instruction and practice in technical writing and reporting.

Interested persons can register at the college's Stone Ridge campus from 6 to 9 p. m. on Thursday, Feb. 1, and 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturday, Feb. 3. Advisers will be present to answer questions concerning the course.

Escapes Injury

DOROTHY W. BUEHRING

ATMH Speaker At Skytop February 5

A special organizational dinner meeting for the Ulster County Chapter of the New York State Association of Teachers of Mentally Handicapped will be held for all Ulster County Special Education Teachers and allied personnel at the Skytop Restaurant on Monday, February 5. The dinner will be served at 7 p. m. with a business meeting following the dinner.

Mrs. Dorothy W. Buehring, associate in the New York State Education Department, Bureau for Mentally Handicapped Children, will be the guest speaker.

The group's position aided the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the committee said, and "pseudo-revolutionaries of Latin America" — the regime's phrase for Communists who have turned their backs on Castro's policy of open insurrection.

Further information may be obtained from Richard Davis, Myron J. Michael School.

Fidel to Try Old Bolsheviks, Foes of Action

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban Communist party, in a new show of divergence from Moscow, is putting on trial nine Old Bolsheviks who opposed Prime Minister Fidel Castro's policy of exporting guerrilla revolutions to the rest of Latin America.

The purge, announced Sunday after a three-day meeting of the party's central committee, also caught two members of the committee but there was no indication they would be put on trial. They were Jose Matar, former chief of the two-million-member network of informers and local vigilantes known as the Committee for the Defense of the Revolution, and Ramon Calcinés, head of the fruit industry.

The nine men who will be tried by a revolutionary tribunal were headed by Anibal Escalante, one of the party's three top leaders before Castro took it over. Escalante lost out in a power struggle six years ago.

Informed sources said Escalante was certain to be accused of treason when he was put on trial.

A communique charged Escalante's group with "intrigues," distributing propaganda against the party, giving false information to foreign officials to damage Cuban foreign relations and possessing secret documents of the committee of Basic Industries.

The group's position aided the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the committee said, and "pseudo-revolutionaries of Latin America" — the regime's phrase for Communists who have turned their backs on Castro's policy of open insurrection.

The two ousted central committee members were accused of involvement with Escalante. The communique also said there had been an antigovernment faction in Fruiticuba, the state export company which Calcinés headed. The central committee also declared solidarity with North Korea over the seizure of the USS Pueblo and announced that it would not send a delegation to the world meeting of Communists arranged by the Soviet Union in Budapest this month.

Plan Celebration

Saugerties Jaycees have begun making plans for a July 4 celebration.

Named to committees planning the event are: George Leombruno, project chairman; Frank Aftowicz, field day chairman; Nicholas Pinto, concessions chairman; Mat Duer, finance chairman and Maurice Hinchey, parade chairman.

Leombruno has expressed the wish that those persons having suggestions for a "better" celebration on July 4, contact him.

Rebekah Degree Conferred on Two Candidates

The 186th anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Wildey, Lodge founder, was observed by Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge 34, Saugerties, Tuesday evening, Jan. 16, by conferring the Rebekah degree on two candidates.

Judith M. Martin, district deputy president of Ulster Rebekah District, assisted by deputy marshal, Anna E. Minkler, installed Dorothy Imhoff as financial secretary and Sarah Mack as chaplain.

The refreshment committee for the next meeting, Feb. 6, will be Hannah Lewis and Alice Legg.

Chairman

George Becker of Saugerties has been named to serve as chairman of the Lourdes Fund Raising Committee.

Announcement of his selection was made at a quarterly meeting of Hudson Valley Chapter and Conference, Knights of Columbus at Beacon.

Basketball Twin-Bill Is Planned by Lions

Saugerties Lions Club viewed a film, "The Role of Agriculture in the Future" at its weekly dinner meeting held Monday at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Tail-Twister, George Turner, answered questions following the film, narrated by Chet Huntley.

Details of the basketball double-header scheduled for Feb. 16 were given.

The evening will feature a basketball game between the Woodstock Old Timers and the Saugerties Old Timers, a revival of a dynamic rivalry of several years ago.

The Lions Club program is being used as a fund-raising device for the local Club's scholarship merit award, which will be held in conjunction with the South Side Men's Club Old Timer's Night, scheduled for the following Saturday, Feb. 17, at which time Saugerties "sporting greats" will be honored as in the past, by admission to the now famous South Side Men's Club Hall of Fame.

The public is invited to attend both functions.

Producer Leonard Opposes 'Long Shows'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The

Long Form" is the popular

phrase in television programming circles these days, and

here's one veteran producer

who opposes it — Sheldon Leonard.

The Long Form is television talk for shows that last 90 minutes or longer. Network programming chiefs are thinking more and more in such terms, because of the dominance of feature films in the ratings this season.

"It's a natural progression for TV to go in the direction of the Long Form," said one network boss. "The audience is demanding more quality and that usually-though not always-means a longer format: feature movies, and 90-minute or even two-hour dramas that allow room for character and plot develop-

The move toward lengthier able to see network movies every night of the week.

"If 'I Spy' is renewed, it will mean NBC will have to find another time slot for us," observed Leonard. "That won't be easy, with three nights of movies. And much of the network's talk about new series is in terms of 90 minutes or more. If such shows get into next season's schedule, there won't be

Leonard deprecates the trend.

He was one of the pioneers of the half-hour situation comedy, partnering with Danny Thomas on the Thomas show. "The Real McCoys," Andy Griffith and Dick Van Dyke.

"I think the networks are making a mistake in going overboard for the Long Form," said the producer. "That's not the real essence of television entertainment. People still want to tune in and see their favorites week after week. It was a comfort to them to know that Dick

Van Dyke or Andy Griffith would be in the same spot.

"Now the audience is confused in its loyalties. The viewers are asked to root for Kirk

Douglas one week and Elvis

Presley the next. There is no

Producer Leonard Opposes 'Long Shows'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The

Long Form" is the popular

phrase in television programming circles these days, and

here's one veteran producer

who opposes it — Sheldon Leonard.

The Long Form is television

talk for shows that last 90 minutes or longer. Network programming chiefs are thinking more and more in such terms, because of the dominance of entertainment has placed in jeopardy one of television's prestige shows. "I Spy," Sheldon Leonard, creator and producer of the Robert Culp, Bill Cosby series, admitted that the show's future hangs in the balance. This season it has been whopped in the ratings by Carol Burnett and "Big Valley."

NBC has already announced that the Monday night spot will be occupied next season by feature movies. That will be the third night of feature films for NBC, and thus viewers will be able to see network movies every night of the week.

"If 'I Spy' is renewed, it will mean NBC will have to find another time slot for us," observed Leonard. "That won't be easy, with three nights of movies. And much of the network's talk about new series is in terms of 90 minutes or more. If such shows get into next season's schedule, there won't be much room left for an hour show."

Leonard deplores the trend. He was one of the pioneers of the half-hour situation comedy, partnering with Danny Thomas on the Thomas show, "The Real McCoys," Andy Griffith and Dick Van Dyke.

"I think the networks are making a mistake in going overboard for the Long Form," said the producer. "That's not the real essence of television entertainment. People still want to tune in and see their favorites week after week. It was a comfort to them to know that Dick Van Dyke or Andy Griffith would be in the same spot."

"Now the audience is confused in its loyalties. The viewers are asked to root for Kirk Douglas one week and Elvis Presley the next. There is no continuity to movies."

New RV Scholarship Chairman

Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund has announced the election of John B. Wilkie of Stone Ridge as chairman of its board of directors succeeding the late A. J. Anderson of Kerhonkson. A non-profit organization, the RVSF annually recognizes outstanding achievement of Rondout Valley High School graduates by awarding scholarships. Wilkie, a counselor-at-law in Kingston, is a member of the firm of LeFevre and Wilkie. He is a trustee of the Kingston Savings Bank and member of Kingston Kiwanis. He also is active in civic and community organizations. He resides in Stone Ridge with his wife and two daughters, Cathy and Jennifer.

JOHN B. WILKIE

A successful dinner to raise funds for scholarships was held last fall under chairmanship of Dr. Solomon S. Shapiro of Kerhonkson. The dinner probably will be an annual event. Fund officials hope that tax-deductible contributions will continue to be made by area groups and individuals.

Plans for 1968

Fund directors are presently working on plans for next year and the selection of students for 1968 awards. One scholarship will be presented this year in the name of the Class of 1967, Rondout Valley High School, which made a substantial contribution from its class treasury to the fund. Seven scholarships have been awarded previously by the five-year-old organization. The fund's board will meet Tuesday night, Feb. 27 in the high school laboratory.

Permanent personal registration for the Rondout Valley

Central School District, approved by the Board of Education in September, will begin March 4 and continue until April 30 at each of the four elementary schools in the district. Harold B. Rich is chairman of the Board of Registration. The four elementary school secretaries assisting are Mrs. Dorothy Pontello, Kerhonkson; Mrs. Gertrude Joy, Marbletown; Mrs. Elena Black, Accord; and Mrs. Doris Ritter, Rosendale.

Residents of the Town of Marbletown will register at Marbletown Elementary School, town of Rochester at Accord, town of Wawarsing at Kerhonkson and residents of Rosendale at Rosendale, during regular school hours. After the first school election one day per week will be set aside for registration in order to maintain the rolls.

A person's registration will be in effect as long as he votes in at least one of two consecutive years in a school election. Failure to vote for two straight years will necessitate re-registration in order to be eligible. At the January meeting of the RVCS Board of Education again rejected a competitive skiing program. The vote was 4 to 3. Five votes were needed for approval.

Mrs. Wagenlohr Retires

The retirement of Mrs. Katherine Wagenlohr of the high school art department was regrettably accepted, effective Jan. 31. Lee Schirmer was appointed to succeed her. January's Curriculum Capsule featured three participants of the second grade in-service program. They were Accord principal Warren Schoonmaker, chairman, and Mrs. Nellie Garfman of Marbletown School and Mrs. Mary Ose of the Accord School. The group reported on independent reading activities, reporting to parents and groups reading and other phases of second grade work.

Supt. of Schools Ted T. Grenda characterized these curriculum reports as representing "a 2-way street of communication between Board and staff. Dr. Grenda announced the placement of RVCS on the accredited membership list of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, calling it "a credit to our high school staff and a major step forward in providing quality education to our students and taxpayers."

The Board of Education has approved the assumption of the RVCS Agriculture Program by BOCES, which is willing to take over the program using the Rondout facilities. In its current review of high-cost educational programs, the Board found agriculture one of the highest.

Assumption by BOCES was approved because the continuation of agriculture under its auspices will assure that Rondout students may continue the program. Moreover, there will be broadened opportunities for these students, two teachers will be engaged in agriculture instruction under BOCES, instead of one teacher Rondout now employs. While the economies will be small the first year of operation, a saving of $10,000-$15,000 is anticipated in the second year. State aid returns 80 per cent on BOCES-conducted courses.

Interested students from other schools will have an opportunity to take agriculture also under the new set-up. The program will be county-wide, with two centers, one at Walkkill, the other at Rondout Valley. At the former, students from Wallkill, New Paltz and Highland may take the Agriculture I and II, Conservation and Agriculture. At Rondout Valley, which will serve Rondout, Kingston, Saugerties, Onteora and Ellenville, courses will be offered in Agriculture I and II, Farm Production Management and Horticulture.

TESTIMONIAL—Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, was recently honored for his performance as a public servant. Attending a testimonial dinner for Savago were (L) GOP County Chairman John B. Sterley, Savago, Mrs. Ethel Savago, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, and dinner chairman Paul Benson. (Photo by Sutton.)

SAVING IS NOT AS SIMPLE AS IT SEEMS . . . AND EARNING MORE ON SAVINGS IS NOT EASY

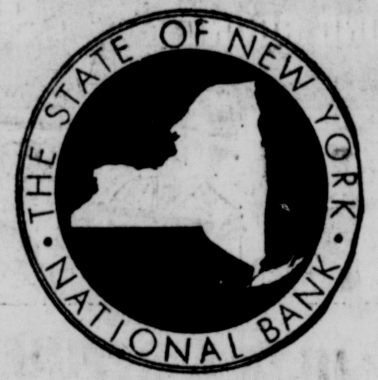

There is more to saving than merely stopping in at the nearest bank and depositing a few dollars when your conscience says you need a greater financial cushion for emergencies.

As an instance, locally only The State of New York National Bank pays every-day interest, from day of deposit to day of withdrawal, on passbook savings accounts. Other banks refrain from paying interest on sums withdrawn unless it coincides with a calendar-year quarterly withdrawal period. You can thereby lose up to almost 90 days interest on money needed for emergencies.

The State of New York National Bank also (exclusively) compounds interest daily on 5% Savings Certificates of Deposit for 5.13% annual interest, a rate guaranteed in advance for 1 full year. Withdrawals made at the end of any 90 day period earn full 5% interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal. And they are designed for the small saver, with minimum deposit of $1,000.

TODAY IS THE BEST DAY TO START SAVING!

SAVING IS NOT AS SIMPLE AS IT SEEMS . . . AND EARNING MORE ON SAVINGS IS NOT EASY

There is more to saving than merely stopping in at the nearest bank and depositing a few dollars when your conscience says you need a greater financial cushion for emergencies.

As an instance, locally only The State of New York National Bank pays every-day interest, from day of deposit to day of withdrawal, on passbook savings accounts. Other banks refrain from paying interest on sums withdrawn unless it coincides with a calendar-year quarterly withdrawal period. You can thereby lose up to almost 90 days interest on money needed for emergencies.

The State of New York National Bank also (exclusively) compounds interest daily on 5% Savings Certificates of Deposit for 5.13% annual interest, a rate guaranteed in advance for 1 full year. Withdrawals made at the end of any 90 day period earn full 5% interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal. And they are designed for the small saver, with minimum deposit of $1,000.

TODAY IS THE BEST DAY TO START SAVING!

'Y' Drive Going Strong

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Funds continue to pour in to the most ambitious building campaign drive in Ulster County's history and, with a goal of $1,860,000 still to be realized, Paul Coon, public relations chairman for the YMCA, said that "the people of Ulster County will long benefit from the successful completion of this campaign."

With a 2,226 membership in 1967, and a 4,750 total membership anticipated for 1972, the Y building on Broadway and Pine Grove Avenue can no longer handle the increasing crowds, and can no longer sustain renovation and facility additions.

A modern building complex to be constructed at the site of the present 1892-1912 structure with a 75 to 100 car parking lot has been proposed and planned.

In what may well become the most dynamic recreation-oriented building in the county, plans call for a six lane 37' by 75' official AAU and NCAA swimming pool seating 144 spectators and including an observation deck, and a 72' by 98' gymnasium with official exhibition court and two full-sized half courts.

The social and administrative wing of the complex will accommodate club rooms, a youth game room, a crafts room, a large multi-purpose room with adjoining kitchen for special functions which will be able to serve about 200 people for dining, and necessary administrative and office spaces.

Among other features of the new physical plant will be two regulation handball courts, a special exercise room (judo and wrestling), and a body-building room.

A health club facility for both men and women will also be featured, the extra fee paid by these members serving to defray operating costs of the new building.

It was in 1864, during the last year of the American Civil War, that the YMCA was organized.

During the first quarter century, the Y served the community from a variety of locations — private homes, churches, public buildings, rented property—and wherever else its program could be accommodated.

In 1892, six years before the Spanish-American War began, the Y moved into its first new building, located on the Broadway and Pine Grove site. This building, identified by its yellow brick and an adjoining house, symbolized service to youth and a congregating point for community services for a succeeding quarter century.

By 1912, the Y had outgrown these facilities.

A campaign fund of $75,000 was organized and fund raisers collected some $78,557.

The new building was dedicated on Sept. 17, 1912 and not since that time has the Kingston Y asked the community for help in a building program.

The new plans, developed last year, envision extension services in such communities as Saugerties, New Paltz, West Hurley-Woodstock and others.

Included in the new physical plant will be separate modern and easily maintained locker room facilities for boys and senior male members.

There will also be girls' and senior women's locker room facilities equipped with 20 dressing booths, private showers, and hair drying and make-up facilities.

Locker room complexes will be on the ground floor adjacent to the pool, providing easy access at the shallow end.

'Y' officials like to consider their organization as an association of people, youth and adults, participating as individuals in a variety of activities, or as members of a family group participating together in family programs.

The new facilities, said a spokesman, "will enable the 'Y' to provide more and better programs and activities for all, and the contract of the staff with adult family members will make possible a far greater degree of effectiveness in the 'Y's' work with youth."

Anniversaries Tuesday

Historic Dutchess Sites

The anniversaries of the establishment of Roosevelt-Vanderbilt National Historic Sites, Hyde Park, will be observed jointly Tuesday as announced today by Superintendent Stuart H. Maule, Roosevelt-Vanderbilt National Historic Sites.

The Roosevelt Home and the Vanderbilt Mansion will be open to visitors from 9 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. and admission to both buildings will be free. Both historic sites are administered by the National Park Service, United States Department of the Interior. The Franklin D. Roosevelt Library, administered by General Services Administration, will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. and admission will also be free.

The observance will be the 28th anniversary of the establishment of Vanderbilt Mansion National Historic Site. The estate belonged to Frederick W. Vanderbilt until his death in 1938. The 211-acre estate was designated a National Historic Site Dec. 18, 1940, following its donation to the United States Government by Mrs. Margaret Van Alen, a niece of Mrs. Vanderbilt. Mrs. Van Alen, now Mrs. Louise Bruguiere, lives in Newport, R. I.

This will be the 24th anniversary of the establishment of the Home of Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site. The Home and its furnishings together with 33 acres of land were donated to the United States Government by President Roosevelt and the area was designated a National Historic Site on Jan. 14, 1944. The Home was opened to the public on April 12, 1946, the first anniversary of the President's death.

Since establishment day falls on Tuesday, Jan. 30, this year, the public will have the additional opportunity of attending the observance of the birthday

268 County Cancer Deaths During '66

Cancer was the cause of 18.8 per cent of all deaths in Ulster County in 1966, according to Dr. Harri H. Janssen, President of the American Cancer Society, Ulster County Unit.

The 1966 provisional figures were supplied by the Bureau of Cancer Control, New York State Department of Health, and are the most accurate, and the latest, figures available at this time.

In Ulster County, total deaths were 1,425, with 268 cancer deaths.

Total deaths in the 54 upstate counties stood at 68,271, with 11,400 or 16.7 per cent due to cancer.

"When we realize that cancer is killing members of our families, friends and neighbors, at this rate, everyone should want to do something about it," Dr. Janssen said.

"Much of our progress in the cancer control program is due to the support residents of Ulster County have given the American Cancer Society. We sincerely hope this support will continue this year so our programs of cancer research, professional education, and service to cancer patients will continue at a high level."

Short term grants for reference courses in cancer control for practicing physicians and dentists are available through the American Cancer Society, New York State Division, 400 Broadway.

"The program of short term grants is intended to encourage and stimulate practicing physicians and dentists to take re-examination courses in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer," he said.

"This program is designed primarily for the physician or dentist who practices in more remote distances from medical teaching centers rather than those practicing close to these teaching centers, where opportunity for continuing education in cancer control is more readily available."

Requirements for participation, Dr. Janssen explained, include: the candidate must be a practicing physician or dentist; citizen of the United States; resident within the State of New York; member of good standing of the County Medical Society.

The course to be attended must be a recognized approved teaching program and be designed as a postgraduate course rather than a meeting or conference.

More information, and application form is available through the Ulster County Unit office, 400 Broadway.

Bomb Hunt
Will Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says that while there's no hope any of four lost hydrogen bombs will be found intact, the search will be pressed for months if necessary in frigid Greenland.

Serial numbers on weapons fragments found at the crash site correspond with Strategic Air Command listings of serial numbers on various components on all four bombs, the Pentagon said Sunday.

"We know damned well that those bombs were torn apart when the plane came down and burned," an Air Force colonel said at the crash site on the ice of North Star Bay, 7½ miles from Thule Air Base on Greenland's northwest coast.

Searchers have found the four parachutes that were a vital part of the bombs' delivery systems. A Pentagon nuclear expert, serving as part of the search team, acknowledged the chutes are sealed within the casings of the bombs.

"You can draw your own conclusions from the fact the chutes were found separate from anything else," one source said.

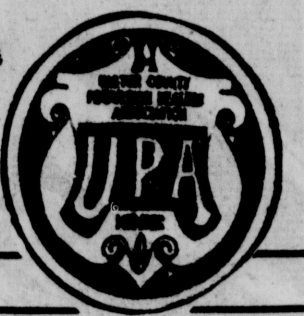

Their purpose is to slow the descent of the weapons in an attack so the plane that drops them will have time to get out of the area before they explode.

Maj. Gen. Richard O. Hunziker, director of the 24-hour-a-day recovery effort, said the four chutes were found in a compact area near the dark burn marks on the ice where the B52 bomber crashed a week ago.

Officers at the scene indicated the search for more fragments may go on until the summer breakup of the bay ice—about June.

Defense officials at the crash scene and in Washington kept a tight security lid on the nature of many of the fragments being found so as not to reveal construction details of the bombs all believed to be in the 1.1 megaton range.

Several search officers said in private that one of their primary missions is to assure Denmark, which governs Greenland, that everything possible is being done to find the bombs and to eliminate any possibility of dangerous radiation.

MRS. DOUGLAS J. NOBLE
(Lakeside Studio)

Geisel-Noble Nuptials Told

Miss Eileen A. Geisel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Geisel, 121 Pine Grove Avenue, Kingston, was married Saturday, Jan. 23, to Douglas J. Noble, 8 Wrentham Street, son of John Noble, Sawkill Road, Kingston, at St. Mary's Church, this city.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Peter Mancuso, organist, accompanied Mrs. Virginia Mancuso who sang traditional wedding selections. The church was decorated with white gladioli and white pom-poms and the pews marked with white bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white Alencon lace gown designed with a circlet neckline, long fitted sleeves, an empire bodice set with tiny bows, and featured an A-line skirt in floor length with a chapel train. Her bouffant illusion veil was shirred to a stylized coronet of lace leaves and lilies of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a corsage and a missal covered with material which matched her gown, accented with white satin ribbons and lilies of the valley.

Miss Joan E. Geisel, 121 Pine Grove Avenue, this city, was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a two-tone royal and powder blue empire styled gown with a royal velvet bodice and pebble crape floor-length skirt accented with velvet daisies. A matching daisy trimmed headpiece was fastened to a chapel veil and she carried a nosegay of light blue and white carnations with a white bow.

Bridesmaids were Jennifer Miller, 150 Wall Street, Kingston, and Alina Szandrowski, Jamaica, both classmates of the bride. Their gowns and headpieces were fashioned identically to that of the maid of honor and they carried nosegays of light blue carnations with blue bows.

Roy Wood, Highland, was best man. Ushers were Robert Overfield, Harding Avenue, and John Fransch, Colonial Gardens, cousin of the bride.

After the wedding a reception for 125 guests was held at the Capri 400, Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pa., the bride selected a two-tone brown and beige knit dress with matching accessories.

The bride, a graduate of St. Mary's School and Kingston High School, will graduate in June from the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing.

Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Delhi Technology University, is employed by Ben Rhymer TV, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble will reside at 132 TenBroeck Avenue, Kingston.

Doing the Right Thing

GOOD PLANNING AND CAREFUL PRESENTATION ENHANCE "HOME-STYLE" MEALS

"What shall we have for dinner tonight?" doesn't mean "What soup?" or "What vegetable?" or "What dessert?" It means "What will the main course be?" But the accompaniments are important and often determine the success of the meal.

When a supermarket locates its meat counter in the most conspicuous spot in the store, this is done to allow you to buy the food for your main dish before anything else. Once this choice has been made, deciding on the rest of the purchases becomes much easier since they should all be related to what is already in your shopping basket.

More important than selecting a dinner-party-type meal is the choosing of a balanced menu. If you are serving a substantial roast meat, pick a clear or lightly creamed soup rather than a chowder or puree. If you like peppery food, fine, but when you serve hot Mexican chile, don't precede it with spicy curried soup.

Equally bad is a dinner which is colorless from beginning to end: Sole with white sauce, followed by breast of chicken with mashed potatoes and creamed celery, and vanilla ice cream. Or everything sweet: beet soup, duck basted with currant jelly, a sweet fruit salad and a sugary dessert. In these examples each dish is good in itself but unpalatable in such a combination.

Some foods compliment each other so well that they seem almost to enjoy a sort of marital status when we think of them. Corned beef and cabbage, pork and beans, ham and eggs are examples that are known to everyone. Others that are perhaps not as common-place are tongue with spinach, baked ham with macaroni au gratin, melon with prosciutto, veal and peppers. The list is endless and the right combination enhances the enjoyment of each, whereas the wrong one can be disastrous.

The need for a pleasing arrangement of food on every plate is most important. Obviously you are not going to rival the efforts of the head chef at the Waldorf with an elaborate buffet of ice carvings and foods molded to the shape of the animals from which they came. You can, however, see that individual plates in home style dinners are nicely presented. A sprig of parsley or watercress dresses up most foods. Many times a bright red sprinkle of paprika provides just the touch to change ordinary white cream sauce into something more pleasing. Above everything else, do not heap a plate with so much food that the mere sight of it will gag the person it is placed before. Much better to serve a smaller portion attractively arranged and keep the extra food warm for second helpings on the back of the stove or on a hot tray.

When preparing a platter, either for a buffet supper or for the family table, think a little bit about the composition before dishing out the food from the pots on the stove. If your gravy looks pale and uninteresting, darken it with a few shakes of Gravy Master. Arrange foods with a cream sauce inside a ring of noodles or rice. If the sauce is very runny and threatens to inundate everything, don't try to pour all of it on the main dish. Fill a gravy boat instead and serve it on the side. Lamb chops arranged in a crown around a mound of mashed potatoes are far more appealing than when served on a separate platter.

In addition, the time taken to arrange them is offset by the saving in having only one platter to wash afterwards.

The suggestions given above are merely starting points. You will, according to your family's or your guests' tastes, vary them considerably. But I hope they will help to bring to your mind other ideas that will please you, and those enjoying your hospitality.

MRS. DOUGLAS J. NOBLE
(Lakeside Studio)

Geisel-Noble Nuptials Told

Miss Eileen A. Geisel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Geisel, 121 Pine Grove Avenue, Kingston, was married Saturday, Jan. 23, to Douglas J. Noble, 8 Wrentham Street, son of John Noble, Sawkill Road, Kingston, at St. Mary's Church, this city.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Peter Mancuso, organist, accompanied Mrs. Virginia Mancuso who sang traditional wedding selections. The church was decorated with white gladioli and white pompons and the pews marked with white bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white Alencon lace gown designed with a circlet neckline, long fitted sleeves, an empire bodice set with tiny bows, and featured an A-line skirt in floor length with a chapel train. Her bouffant illusion veil was shirred to a stylized coronet of lace leaves and lilies of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a corsage and a missal covered with material which matched her gown, accented with white satin ribbons and lilies of the valley.

Miss Joan E. Geisel, 121 Pine Grove Avenue, this city, was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a two-tone royal and powder blue empire styled gown with a royal velvet bodice and pebble crape floor-length skirt accented with velvet daisies. A matching daisy trimmed headpiece was fastened to a chapel veil and she carried a nosegay of light blue and white carnations with a white bow. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Miller, 150 Wall Street, Kingston, and Alina Szandrowski, Jamaica, both classmates of the bride. Their gowns and headpieces were fashioned identically to that of the maid of honor and they carried nosegays of light blue carnations with blue bows.

Roy Wood, Highland, was best man. Ushers were Robert Overfield, Harding Avenue, and John Franch, Colonial Gardens, cousin of the bride.

After the wedding a reception for 125 guests was held at the Capri 400, Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pa., the bride selected a two-tone brown and beige knit dress with matching accessories.

The bride, a graduate of St. Mary's School and Kingston High School, will graduate in June from the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing.

Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Delhi Technology University, is employed by Ben Rhymer TV, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble will reside at 132 TenBroeck Avenue, Kingston.

Doing the Right Thing

GOOD PLANNING AND CAREFUL PRESENTATION ENHANCE "HOME-STYLE" MEALS

"What shall we have for dinner tonight?" doesn't mean "What soup?" or "What vegetable?" or "What dessert?" It means "What will the main course be?" But the accompaniments are important and often determine the success of the meal.

When a supermarket locates its meat counter in the most conspicuous spot in the store, this is done to allow you to buy the food for your main dish before anything else. Once this choice has been made, deciding on the rest of the purchases becomes much easier since they should all be related to what is already in your shopping basket.

More important than selecting a dinner-party-type meal is the choosing of a balanced menu. If you are serving a substantial roast meat, pick a clear or lightly creamed soup rather than a chowder or puree. If you like peppery food, fine, but when you serve hot Mexican chile, don't precede it with spicy curried soup.

Equally bad is a dinner which is colorless from beginning to end: Sole with white sauce, followed by breast of chicken with mashed potatoes and creamed celery, and vanilla ice cream. Or everything sweet: beet soup, duck basted with currant jelly, a sweet fruit salad and a sugary dessert. In these examples each dish is good in itself but unpalatable in such a combination.

Some foods complement each other so well that they seem almost to enjoy a sort of marital status when we think of them. Corned beef and cabbage, pork and beans, ham and eggs are examples that are known to everyone. Others that are perhaps not as common-place are tongue with spinach, baked ham with macaroni au gratin, melon with prosciutto, veal and peppers. The list is endless and the right combination enhances the enjoyment of each, whereas the wrong one can be disastrous.

The need for a pleasing arrangement of food on every plate is most important. Obviously you are not going to rival the efforts of the head chef at the Waldorf with an elaborate buffet of ice carvings and foods molded to the shape of the animals from which they came. You can, however, see

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The Federal Housing Administration, of all people, has just issued a bulletin on female legs. It is rather surprising that this subject comes under federal housing, but the Administration's health division has issued the information, so maybe a doctor is involved in it somewhere.

Mini skirts, the bulletin says, plus cold weather make fat legs. "The legs of young women respond quite rapidly to exposure to cold temperatures. The bodily response is a quick build-up of the successive layers of fatty molecules under the skin areas of the thighs, knees, calves and ankles of the female legs."

For the fashionably dressed, this is going to be the worst news since shorts were banned in church. Some old-timers will be secretly pleased. See, they will mutter, not only do mini skirts look absurd, they are bad for you. And don't think, once your legs get plump, that it will be easy to reduce them again. The Housing Administration is firm on that, too. If the cold has fattened up your legs, they can be thinned out again only "by extraordinary exercises that most women find difficult to maintain."

What shall be done? We can't let down our heels, not until fashion tells us we may. Out boots go only up to the knee. Perhaps those hip boots that fishermen wear will be adopted for young ladies, with tassels on them or in bright colors. We might go back to the leggings that doughboys in World War I used to wind around their legs.

Poor fashionable young ladies. Everybody is against them. High court judges in Britain have recently reprimanded women lawyers for looking too feminine in court. Elaborate hairdos, frilly blouses, those knee boots, and of course those mini skirts—out with them. A lawyer should conduct himself (herself) with dignity and decorum. "It is important that barristers should conform to the traditional sober costume." This means, if it means anything, a long black skirt, a white blouse with a high collar and long sleeves, and high-laced shoes. Thus justice would be served.

Well, it will all pass. Skirts will come down or disappear altogether; boots will be replaced by sandals or bare feet will be the mode, even for snowy streets. If they are, however, some government department is going to issue another warning: Toes exposed to freezing temperatures are likely to be attacked by chilblains, and if you think chilblains are easy to get rid of, you must think again. Your reddened, aching toes will be with you as long as those chubby legs for which the reducing exercises are too much trouble.

Kingston Chapter 155 Holds Reception

A reception was given Friday evening, Jan. 19, by Kingston Chapter 155, Order of Eastern Star, for Helen Piwowarski, worthy matron, and George Radcliffe, worthy patron. A degree, "A Happy Journey," was conferred on the guests of honor.

Those who attended were Arthur Aldridge, worshipful master of Rondout Lodge No. 343; Lillian Boice, royal matron, and Lemuel Boice, royal patron, Mystic Court Order of Amaranth; Harriette Lent, grand representative of Amaranth to the state of Illinois; Charlotte Reynolds, royal princess of the Nile Clubs; Joseph Flowers, president of Ulster County Shrine Club; Harriet Campbell, district deputy of Rebekahs; Frances Kilpatrick, worthy matron, and Edwin Kilpatrick, worthy patron, Highland Chapter; Lucie Baker, worthy matron, and Paul Jones, worthy patron, Clinton Chapter.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lolly, Hingham, Mass.; Miss Betsy Pirowski, grand star of happiness of Constellation of Junior Stars; Urban Pirowski, the present king and junior deacon of Colonial Chapter, Order of Demolay.

The worthy matron reminded the organization of the card party scheduled for Saturday. The officer's club meeting was held on January 22 and the open house was given Sunday, Jan. 21.

An oven-baked dinner prepared by Mrs. Arthur Aldridge was served after the meeting.

Kenneth Hasbrouck, Historian, Presents His Report for 1967

A historian's report from Jan. 1, 1967 through Dec. 31, 1967 was submitted by Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, of New Paltz recently to The Freeman.

Mr. Hasbrouck stated "the main work of the historian in today's society is to be able to refer people to the sources of information. The work entails research, cataloging, filing, and bringing together subject matter that will make it easier for those who come to us seeking help. It is important that we should be fostering historical interest on the part of the people."

Recently when the Board of Supervisors held the last meeting in the County of Ulster, giving way to the County Legislature, he noted that the term, supervisor, had its beginning in 1701. By 1703 the supervisor system became firmly established in each county, and an act of the Assembly re-established the board of supervisors in practically its form that continued through 1967. Last year saw the end of the board after 266 years. However, the position of supervisor still exists in each town.

Mr. Hasbrouck reported on a survey of houses in Ulster County built prior to 1850 which is under the sponsorship of the Junior League of Kingston. Also the New York State Historic Trust has undertaken a project whereby houses of special historical significance will be placed on record. This list will take note of all houses that would be worthy of preserving for the future.

"Preservation takes time and effort," Mr. Hasbrouck explained, "and a goal is reached only after a long period of dedicated work on the part of a few people."

Special mention was made of the walking tours conducted in Kingston throughout May to October at New Paltz and the tour of the Delaware and Hudson Canal sites with a visit to the Canal Museum at High Falls by members of the Ulster County Historical Society.

The historians of Lloyd, Plattskill and Woodstock have been leaders in a community project for providing research areas for children. This has been accomplished within the school curriculum and in extra-curricular activities. Writing papers on various subjects gathering material to produce a community history and creating scale models of historic sites, have been some of the works accomplished within the past year.

Mr. Hasbrouck feels that county historians should meet occasionally to compare notes. As there are areas of research that have not been covered he suggests the possibility of uniting efforts to see that the work was accomplished. Also by having meetings duplication of effort would be eliminated.

During 1967 the early wills that were sent from the counties to the Court of Appeals, Albany, many years ago, were sent to Queens College. The will be before 1797 and a complete index has been obtained. The collection of old papers at the County Clerk's Office, Kingston, has been completely indexed during the past year and is now ready for permanent filing.

The State University College at New Paltz continues to grow rapidly with an estimate of 3800 students in the fall of 1968 and by 1970 about 5000 students.

During the past year the Ulster County Fair that has been held for many years at Kingston moved to the Libertyville area near New Paltz on the County Farm grounds.

Volume II, History of the Town of Lloyd, written by Warren G. Sherwood in the late 1930s, was published in 1967 through the efforts of Myra Bell VanDermark, Mrs. Clara Gaffney and Mrs. Beatrice Hasbrouck Wadlin.

Many people have responded to requests for documents, old records and photographs which are especially valuable as an aid for restoration.

In the autumn of 1967, the Ulster County Community College buildings at Stone Ridge were ready for occupancy and the student body moved out from Kingston to begin the fall term.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Here is a hint for your blind "readers."

When I became blind, it was obvious that I would not become a fast braille reader, partly because I am still learning it and partly because my finger sensitively is not quite as sharp as it might be. It's adequate, but I am a bit slow.

I find that a light sanding is helpful to my fingers—a trick picked up from reading about safe-crackers before I became blind!

Thought others who have this same difficulty might be interested in trying my idea.
Esther Hammill

Now, Esther did not say what method those safe-crackers used! But I discussed this with an association for the blind and they tell me that she has come up with a "cracking" new idea!

Those who have recently become blind can have a friend or relative write to the Library of Congress, Division for the Blind, Washington, D. C., 20542 for guidance and information, or you can call your local association for the blind. They will be delighted to help you.

Just dial information on the telephone and the operator will give you the correct number . . . she'll probably even dial it for you.

You have no idea how great these organizations are. And what wonderful work they do! Thanks a bunch, Esther. We will adore you.
Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Plant bean seeds in a glass jar filled with soil. Put the seeds next to the glass so your child can watch them develop and grow roots.
Quite fascinating for little tots.
Mrs. Roger Sanders

Dear Heloise:
Here's a hint I find good for cripples and old people who are not able to hold their shirt sleeves down while donning a sweater.
I pull the sleeve on one arm down and pin it together between the thumb and forefinger with a safety pin. Then I pull on the second garment and remove the pin.

I do the same for the other arm.
M.A.P.

Dear Heloise:
I have been struggling with dust ruffles on my bed for years—either lifting the mattress to take them off to be laundered or wrestling with it to put them back on.

Then there was the problem of tucking the ruffles under the mattress to dust under the bed. Since my bedstead is wood, I hit upon the idea of buying some spring-type, extension curtain rods. These have little metal brackets for the ends that can be screwed onto the corner bedpost or the ends of the wooden bed rails.

I found valances just the right height, but some may have to be altered a little.

Now when I dust under the bed I just lift off the whole valance and lay it on the bed. The rods slip out of the little end brackets easy as pie.
Jeanne McPartland

Dear Heloise:
When we have fried chicken, I cut the wings into separate sections rather than cook them in the traditional triangle.

The bottom tips get boiled with the giblets for gravy, but the other two pieces from each wing I fry and serve as miniature drumsticks.

This is a special treat for the youngest child, but I've discovered the whole family loves them, too!

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The Federal Housing Administration, of all people, has just issued a bulletin on female legs. It is rather surprising that this subject comes under federal housing, but the Administration's health division has issued the information, so maybe a doctor is involved in it somewhere.

Mini skirts, the bulletin says, plus cold weather make fat legs. "The legs of young women respond quite rapidly to exposure to cold temperatures. The bodily response is a quick build-up of the successive layers of fatty molecules under the skin areas of the thighs, knees, calves and ankles of the female legs."

For the fashionably dressed, this is going to be the worst news since shorts were banned in church. Some old-timers will be secretly pleased. See, they will mutter, not only do mini skirts look absurd, they are bad for you. And don't think, once your legs get plump, that it will be easy to reduce them again. The Housing Administration is firm on that, too. If the cold has fattened up your legs, they can be thinned out again only "by extraordinary exercises that most women find difficult to maintain."

What shall be done? We can't let down our hems, not until fashion tells us we may. Out boots go only up to the knee. Perhaps those hip boots that fishermen wear will be adopted for young ladies, with tassels on them or in bright colors. We might go back to the leggings that doughboys in World War I used to wind around their legs.

Poor fashionable young ladies. Everybody is against them. High court judges in Britain have recently reprimanded women lawyers for looking too feminine in court. Elaborate hairdos, frilly blouses, those knee boots, and of course those mini skirts—out with them. A lawyer should conduct himself (herself) with dignity and decorum. "It is important that barristers should conform to the traditional sober costume." This means, if it means anything, a long black skirt, a white blouse with a high collar and long sleeves, and high-laced shoes. Thus justice would be served.

Well, it will all pass. Skirts will come down or disappear altogether; boots will be replaced by sandals or bare feet will be the mode, even for snowy streets. If they are, however, some government department is going to issue another warning: Toes exposed to freezing temperatures are likely to be attacked by chilblains, and if you think chilblains are easy to get rid of, you must think again. Your reddened, aching toes will be with you as long as those chubby legs for which the reducing exercises are too much trouble.

Kingston Chapter 155 Holds Reception

A reception was given Friday evening, Jan. 19, by Kingston Chapter 155, Order of Eastern Star, for Helen Piwowarski, worthy matron, and George Radcliffe, worthy patron. A degree, "A Happy Journey," was conferred on the guests of honor.

Those who attended were Arthur Aldridge, worshipful master of Roundout Lodge No. 343; Lillian Boice, royal matron, and Lemuel Boice, royal patron, Mystic Court Order of Amaranth; Harriette Lent, grand representative of Amaranth to the state of Illinois; Charlotte Reynolds, royal princess of the Nile Clubs; Joseph Flowers, president of Ulster County Shrine Club; Harriet Campbell, district deputy of Rebekahs; Frances Kilpatrick, worthy matron, and Edwin Kilpatrick, worthy patron, Highland Chapter; Lucie Baker, worthy matron, and Paul Jones, worthy patron, Clinton Chapter.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lolly, Hingham, Mass.; Miss Betsy Pirowski, grand star of happiness of Constellation of Junior Stars; Urban Pirowski, the present king and junior deacon of Colonial Chapter, Order of Demolay.

The worthy matron reminded the organization of the card party scheduled for Saturday. The officer's club meeting was held on January 22 and the open house was given Sunday, Jan. 21.

An oven-baked dinner prepared by Mrs. Arthur Aldridge was served after the meeting.

Coucheron Sweeps Rosendale Trophy-State Jumps

PANORAMIC VIEW of the Mount Joppenbergh hill at Rosendale where the 1968 Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Trophy Jump and the New York State Championships were held on Saturday and Sunday in unseasonal weather.

Leaps 206 Feet for Area Trophy

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Per Coucheron, the Norwegian born Dartmouth College student, completed a sweep of the two-day ski jumping events at Rosendale Sunday with a narrow victory over Peter Mikkelsen of Westby, Wis., a member of the Eastern jumping squad.

Coucheron's superior jumping style in his two flights on Mt. Joppenbergh hill enabled him to score a narrow victory over Mikkelsen, although the U.S. Air Force sky rider outdistanced him in both jumps—200-197 feet and 202-198.

In Saturday's Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Trophy Jump, Coucheron racked up 210 points on leaps of 206 and 195 feet to outdistance runnerup Duke Schneider who jumped 204-194 and had adjusted rating of 198 points.

Survives Spill

Mikkelsen, with jumps of 204 and 184, placed third. Schneider survived a nasty spill in his practice jump Saturday to come back and place second.

Gary Wolf of the Brattleboro Outing Club led the Class B contingent Saturday by a narrow 152.5-151.2 edge over Art Tokle Jr. Wolf jumped 171-165 to Tokle's 169-161.

Coucheron's leap of 206 feet on his second jump Saturday was only two feet off the hill record of 208 set by Don Colby of Lake Placid in 1967.

Sunday's tournament—the second half of the New York State Combined championships—drew nine Class A jumpers, two more than Saturday.

Conditions Excellent

Even though a light rain fell intermittently during the competition, the crowd of about 1,000 spectators stayed until the last jumper came down the high and steep incline. Hill conditions, as they were Saturday, were considered excellent by the competitors even though temperatures hovered near the 50's both days.

Earl Murphy of the Bear Mountain Winter Sports Association took a first place in the Veterans' contest with a decisive victory over Sig Evensen of the Telemark Ski Club of Brooklyn. Murphy accumulated 152.3 points on leaps of 160 and 161 feet.

Art Tokle Jr., son of the jumping coach of the U. S. Olympic jumping team, won Class B honors with an easy win over Larry Stone of Lake Placid. Fred Way of Mt. Beacon took a fifth place.

Tokle jumped 176 and 175 feet to pile up 169.9 points to Stone's 161-158 for 142.8 points.

Ski Severely Hurt

Bob Dorian of Kearney, N. J., competing for the Delaware Valley Ski Club, was injured severely on a practice leap in the morning and was taken to the Kingston Hospital and treated for facial lacerations and broken shoulder.

He was cheered later in the day when he returned to the scene of the tournament. It was on his first jump of the day that Dorian misjudged the take-off and this error in timing sent him off balance through the air causing an awkward landing. He went sprawling end over end down the long 70-meter Joppenbergh landing hill and lay motionless at the bottom when he finally came to a stop.

Prompt first aid and medical treatment prevented the already bad injury from being aggravated.

X-Country Saturday

In the Saturday jump, Duke Schneider apparently was trying to nurse an ailing shoulder hurt at Bear Mountain as he approached the landing strip. He crashed after traveling 196 feet. He slide to the right side of the outrun. The crowd held its breath as he lay motionless.

for several seconds but the Providence, R. I. city planner then jumped to his feet without having suffered additional injury.

The Rosendale Winter Carnival continues on Saturday with the New York State Cross Country Championship race which was postponed because of poor snow conditions this past weekend.

Rangers Change the Script For Them-Always Sunday

By ED SCHUYLER JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Its ways on Sunday for the New York Rangers. Well, almost always.

What it almost always is for the Rangers is a National Hockey League victory. And it was again Sunday night, 4-2 over the Oakland Seals.

The Rangers lost their first Sunday game of the season, 3-2 in Detroit Oct. 15. Since then they have reeled off 11 straight Sabbath triumphs, all at home.

While the Rangers were practicing their Sunday magic, elsewhere in the NHL Toronto was beating Chicago 3-1, Pittsburgh was edging Boston 1-0 and Los Angeles was blanking Philadelphia 2-0. Minnesota nipped Detroit 2-1 in an afternoon game.

"With the Rangers, we're not usually a good home team," said Harry Howell, now in his 16th year with New York. "But this year we've been playing good at home."

At home, the Rangers have posted 13 of their 22 victories, including their Sunday specials, and six of their eight ties while suffering only four of their 16 losses.

Howell played a key role in the latest success. Not only did he help thwart an Oakland scoring bid when the Rangers were two men short, he also got the clinching goal, making it 3-1.

"It's like a pitcher hitting a home run," the veteran defenseman said of his third goal of the season.

Rod Gilbert scored twice and Bob Nevin once for the Rangers who outshot Oakland 46-13 but were given plenty of trouble by Seals goalie Charlie Hodge.

Saturday, Montreal beat Boston 5-2, Chicago took Toronto 4-1, St. Louis edged New York 4-3, Detroit nipped Philadelphia 3-1, Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 5-3 and Minnesota defeated Oakland 3-1.

Year of the Celtics?

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Celtics insist this is the year to regain the National Basketball Association title from Philadelphia.

The Celtics, dethroned a year ago by the 76ers, posted their fourth victory in five meetings with their arch rivals this season by defeating Philadelphia 115-103 Sunday.

In other NBA games, New York nipped San Francisco 133-130, Los Angeles walloped St. Louis 128-113 in Miami Beach and Seattle thumped Baltimore 105-126 in Tacoma, Wash.

In ABA action, Dallas upended Anaheim 118-115, Pittsburgh edged New Jersey 123-122 and Oakland turned back Kentucky 108-98.

"I think we can win it this season," veteran Bailey Howell said after a 29-point performance. "Philadelphia looks as good this year, but things aren't going the same for them. Everything fell into place for them last year."

The Celtics led by as much as eight points in the first half and were in front 65-61 at the intermission, but fell behind 84-78 in the first 10½ minutes of the third period.

Suddenly Boston broke loose, outscoring the 76ers 15-1 in a surge which carried to a 93-85 lead early in the finale. Howell helped as he scored 12 points in the fourth period.

Sam Jones matched Howell's output with 29 points, including 22 in the first half.

Wilt Chamberlain topped Philadelphia with 19 points.

In New York, Walt Frazier tossed in two free throws with 37 seconds remaining to play, breaking a 127-127 tie and sending the Knicks in front to stay.

Cazzie Russell, who scored all of his 26 points in the second half, then added the clinching basket. Frazier finished with 23 points, 10 assists and 15 rebounds while Rudy LaRusso topped the Warriors with 31 points.

Coucheron Sweeps Rosendale Trophy-State Jumps

Leaps 206 Feet for Area Trophy

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Per Coucheron, the Norwegian born Dartmouth College student, completed a sweep of the two-day ski jumping events at Rosendale Sunday with a narrow victory over Peter Mikkelsen of Westby, Wis., a member of the Eastern jumping squad.

Coucheron's superior jumping style in his two flights on Mt. Joppenbergh hill enabled him to score a narrow victory over Mikkelsen, although the U.S. Air Force sky rider outdistanced him in both jumps—200-197 feet and 202-198.

In Saturday's Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Trophy Jump, Coucheron racked up 210 points on leaps of 206 and 195 feet to outdistance runnerup Duke Schneider who jumped 204-194 and had adjusted rating of 198 points.

Survives Spill

Mikkelsen, with jumps of 204 and 184, placed third. Schneider survived a nasty spill in his practice jump Saturday to come back and place second.

Gary Wolf of the Brattleboro Outing Club led the Class B contingent Saturday by a narrow 152.5-151.2 edge over Art Tokle Jr. Wolf jumped 171-165 to Tokle's 169-161.

Coucheron's leap of 206 feet on his second jump Saturday was only two feet off the hill record of 208 set by Don Colby of Lake Placid in 1967.

Sunday's tournament—the second half of the New York State Combined championships—drew nine Class A jumpers, two more than Saturday.

Conditions Excellent
Even though a light rain fell intermittently during the competition, the crowd of about 1,000 spectators stayed until the last jumper came down the high and steep incline. Hill conditions, as they were Saturday, were considered excellent by the competitors even though temperatures hovered near the 50's both days.

Earl Murphy of the Bear Mountain Winter Sports Association took a first place in the Veterans' contest with a decisive victory over Sig Eversen of the Telemark Ski Club of Brooklyn. Murphy accumulated 152.3 points on leaps of 160 and 161 feet.

Art Tokle Jr., son of the jumping coach of the U. S. Olympic jumping team, won Class B honors with an easy win over Larry Stone of Lake Placid. Fred Way of Mt. Beacon took a fifth place.

Tokle jumped 176 and 175 feet to pile up 169.9 points to Stone's 161-158 for 142.8 points.

Skier Severely Hurt
Bob Dorian of Kearney, N. J., competing for the Delaware Valley Ski Club, was injured severely on a practice leap in the morning and was taken to the Kingston Hospital and treated for facial lacerations and broken shoulder.

He was cheered later in the day when he returned to the scene of the tournament. It was on his first jump of the day that Dorian misjudged the take-off and this error in timing sent him off balance through the air causing an awkward landing. He went sprawling end over end down the long 70-meter Joppenbergh landing hill and lay motionless at the bottom when he finally came to a stop.

Prompt first aid and medical treatment prevented the already bad injury from being aggravated.

X-Country Saturday
In the Saturday jump, Duke Schneider apparently was trying to nurse an ailing shoulder

hurt at Bear Mountain as he approached the landing strip. He crashed after travelling 196 feet. He slid to the right side of the outrun. The crowd held its breath as he lay motionless for several seconds but the Providence, R. I. city planner then jumped to his feet without having suffered additional injury. The Rosendale Winter Carnival continues on Saturday with the New York State Cross Country Championship race which was postponed because of poor snow conditions this past weekend.

Quinnipiac Braves Check State U. Hawks, 70 to 57

State University Hawks of New Paltz invaded Connecticut with ice cold shooting irons and went down to a 70-57 defeat at the hands of the Quinnipiac College Braves at Hamden Saturday night.

To make matters worse, high scoring Ty Sands was held to his lowest total of the season, 17 points. Bill Shuster, despite a 10/22 performance at the foul line led the team with 18 points. Sands was 7/14 from the free throw line.

Quinnipiac had more muscle than the Hawks and its 2-3 defense gave Shuster and Sands a rough time under the boards. The Braves boosted their record 8 wins and 5 losses.

The Hawks trailed by six points at the half (30-24) closed to within three in the second half, then fell back. It was not a happy night for the Ulsterites who will try to bounce back at Danbury, Conn.

Wednesday night.

The Hawk defense held 6-foot-6 Jack Schindler, Quinnipiac's high scorer to 12 points, but Jack O'Keefe led with 16 and Frank Leary added 14.

Fresh Team Loses

The New Paltz Frosh forced the Quinnipiac yearlings into overtime before losing, 91-82, in a well played game.

Trailing 45-35 at halftime, Coach Roberts' tossers tied the score 77-77 in regulation time. An 8-point barrage by Wayne Chupas in the overtime ruined the locals' bid for their first win of the season.

Chupas finished with 23 points and Dan Voldez potted 29 to lead Quinnipiac. Oscar Kvelland's 21 topped New Paltz.

Tilson Man Charged With Petit Larceny

Accused of the theft of 100 pounds of copper wire from the Hercules Powder Plant in Port Ewen where he was employed, Joseph John Durham, 38, of Box 847, Tilson, was arrested Sunday night by Highland State Police on a petit larceny charge.

Later, Durham was cited by Troopers John Coville and J. W. Hutchins of Highland on charges of driving without a license, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, switched plates, having no inspection sticker and driving a car with unsafe tires, according to Trooper J. F. Czaplinski.

Durham's arrest resulted from an investigation by state police after a complaint was made by Hercules management, troopers said.

Arraigned before Esopus Town Justice John O. Beaver, Durham pleaded guilty to petit larceny. Sentencing was deferred pending further investigation, authorities reported.

In lieu of $150 bail fixed for the motor vehicle violations, Durham was held pending hearing at 7 p. m. today before Justice Beaver.

Goes Off the Beaten Path

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother whose adopted son broke her heart interested me because I have known many such cases. She wrote in part: "We adopted that boy when he was a week old, and loved him more than our own flesh and blood. We prayed for him constantly. Yet between the ages of 15 and 19, he went from skipping school to robbery to rape! Our hearts are broken. Our son was raised in a good Christian home. We went to church every Sunday and never had tobacco or liquor in the house. Where have our prayers gone?"

And you replied: "You speak of your prayer as tho it were the premiums you paid for insurance against all ills and evils. It is not. Prayer is simply a talk with one's God. No amount of prayer will protect another from the consequences of his own behavior. Each man must do his own praying, just as each man must accept the consequences of his own acts."

That was fine as far as you went, Abby, but you could have given that mother real consolation by pointing out that since the boy was adopted, he could have inherited bad blood. Haven't you ever heard of that, Abby? What do parents of adopted children really know about the child's bloodlines? It is apparent that if an adopted child goes wrong with good Christian upbringing, the reason must lie in heredity. You missed the boat.

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR ABBY: I have been providing two co-workers with transportation to and from work every day, five days a week, roughly 10 months a year. One has been riding with me for three years, the other for two, and would you believe neither one has ever offered to put in a gallon of gas? For Christmas I got one card from the two of them, with a sweet verse "to someone nice." If they had to take a bus to work and back every day it would cost them each 50 cents, yet I would be satisfied with only a dime. I drive anyway. My husband says I should either tell them to kick in or quit beefing about it. What do you say?

THE DRIVER

DEAR DRIVER: I can't give you any better advice than your husband. Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Oswald: "Ely Culbertson once said, 'Show me all 52 cards and the Culbertson system will get to the right final contract.' What he meant was that in the framework there are enough spots for choice to enable you to bid perfectly when you see all the cards."

Jim: "It is a different proposition at the table. Today's hand is from the 1967 World's championship. Both teams played at four spades. As anyone can see, there are 12 easy tricks for declarer. Even a 4-0 trump break wouldn't bother him in the slightest although the combination of a singleton club opposite six clubs to the ace and a club opening would allow the defense to get in a club ruff and beat a slam contract."

Oswald: "The bidding in the box is Jacoby bidding. North's two no - trump bid is the Jacoby two no - trump which actually is a strong spade raise and forces to four spades or higher. South's three spade rebid shows a good hand with no singleton. North's raise to four spades is a sign - off and shows no slam interest at all."

Jim: "We have inserted a question mark for South's next bid. The reason for this is that North's bid of four spades showed complete lack of interest in a slam, and while we see that the slam is there for the bidding we can't really say that South should see it at the table."

It is apparent that if an adopted child goes wrong with good Christian upbringing, the reason must lie in heredity. You missed the boat.

DISAPPOINTED: That "boat" you speak of was wrecked against the rocks of reason years ago. There is no such thing as "bad blood." Neither is there "good blood." Character, integrity, honesty, and fair play are not inherited thru the bloodstream—they are TAUGHT. And not all who have been exposed to the good, moral, and ethical, "learn" it.

When an adopted child goes "wrong," to lay the blame on "bad blood" is an unjust and ignorant rationalization. DEAR ABBY: I read your verse about being thankful for dirty dishes. I cut it out and keep it over my sink as a reminder when I am tempted to complain about doing dishes. Next to dishes, I think ironing is the hardest of all house-keeping chores, so I paraphrased your "dirty dishes" verse and wrote the following: "Thank God for clothes to iron. They have a tale to tell; While other folks are poorly clad, We're dressing very well. With Home and Health and Happiness We shouldn't fret or fuss. For by this stack of evidence God's very good to us."

Having eschewed the local loan collector for another day the slick-looking salesman felt safe from his creditors for one more week.

Every time the switchboard receptionist would see the obnoxious personnel manager walk through the door of the office, she would purposely find an excuse to eschew having to speak with him.

Familiar Programs Return

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NE YORK (AP) — For the first time in months there was no football on the television networks Sunday and some familiar programs returned to the airwaves.

CBS's "21st Century" came back for a short season with a report of new technological aids in the war against crime.

Still Some Sports
ABC's "American Sportsman" began a fourth season in its usual format—showing celebrities on hunting and fishing trips. Actor Van Heflin successfully landed a blue marlin and wound up almost as exhausted as the big fish. Bing Crosby and Phil Harris were shown shooting sand grouse in East Africa.

CBS's live coverage Sunday afternoon of a professional hockey game—the Detroit Red Wings and the Minnesota North Stars—ran longer than anticipated, and continued into time given "The Young Peoples Concert." The result was that Leonard Bernstein's introductory lecture on Beethoven was lost.

The program consisted of a concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

The drama was slow-moving, actionless and talky, and it was completely unrelieved by humor.

The problems of the family of "Flesh and Blood" made the woes of "Peyton Place" pale by comparison. The father, a structural steel worker, feared he was losing his skill, his wife feared her unfaithfulness of years past might be revealed, a married daughter was leaving a husband who wanted to start a wife-swapping arrangement; a son was a mindless invalid; an uncle was a brooding alcoholic.

Good Cast
There was a good cast including E. G. Marshall, Kim Stanley and Edmond O'Brien, but the drama overwhelmed and engulfed them. It is hard to tell just what the point of the play was—maybe that most men lead lives of noisy desperation.

Recommended Tonight: "Luther," ABC, 8:30-10 EST, adaptation of John Osborne's play with Robert Shaw in the title son was a mindless invalid; an uncle was a brooding alcoholic.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

Trade Mark Reg.

Coach—What's his name? Manager—Oscovinski.

Coach—Put him on the first team. Boy, will I get even with the newspapers.

When a man and wife find themselves unsuited for each other they can be certain that in the next fifty years of married life and strife all adjustments to each other will have been made. Living together thereafter will be in perfect harmony—except maybe agreeing where they are to be buried.

Boxer—Isn't it a long distance from the dressing room to the ring?

Opponent—Yes, but you won't have to walk back.

The simple truth, stated in a decent fashion, is worth its weight in gold.

Tourist—Good river for fish?

Fisherman—Must be. Can't persuade any to come out.

Phil—How do you know?

Bill—Why, I read the other day in the paper about one member who made a speech from the floor of the House.

Small Girl (showing bathroom scale to playmate)—All I know is you stand on it and it makes you angry.

Hollywood's making another one of those tender "homey" pictures—of a young boy's transition to manhood.

One scene is particularly heart-warming. He gets a razor for his sixteenth birthday, and he's so excited he doesn't know what to do first—shave or slash tires.

Mary—No, John, I am sorry; but I am sure we could not be happy together. You know I always want my own way in everything.

John—But, my dear girl, you could go on wanting it after we were married.

Tax loopholes are like parking spaces—they all seem to disappear by the time you get there.

Your candid opinion might be more appreciated if you candy-coated it a little.

The result was that Leonard Bernstein's introductory lecture on Beethoven was lost. The program consisted of a concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

On Saturday night time ran out on ABC's live "Stars of Tomorrow" awards show while there were still more statuettes to be passed out. It was a small loss, since the hour had all the pretensions and all the faults of the annual Emmy and Oscar shows—the limp jokes and the breathless acceptances—but none of their class.

'Flesh' Disappoints
Major disappointment of the weekend was the two-hour production of an original drama, "Flesh and Blood," on NBC. The network paid author William Hanley $125,000 for production rights when the play was Broadway-bound.

for his sixteenth birthday, and he's so excited he doesn't know what to do first—shave or slash tires.

CUFFED AND BATTERED — Handcuffed and wearing a hospital robe, Jack (Murphy the Surf) Murphy arrives at Miami Beach police headquarters after he was treated at a hospital for cuts in his face which he sustained as he tried to escape through a plate glass window from the home of Mrs. Olive Wofford during a shootout with police as he and three others tried to burglarize the house on Miami Beach's famous "Millionaire's Row," Sunday. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Surf Champ In Another Dive

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jack "Murphy the Surf" Murphy, the beachy jewel thief and former stuntman, dove through the glass door of a mansion Sunday into a gunfight with police. The blond surfing champion, diver, ladies man and amateur violinist whose suave good looks were his trademark was no longer handsome when he arrived at police headquarters for a lineup in bare feet, bloody bandages, handcuffs and a backless yellow hospital gown.

Murphy and three other men were charged with the pistol-point robbery of a wealthy widow, her young housemaid and 8-year-old niece in a Millionaire's Row mansion.

Murphy, 32, who stole the Star of India and the DeLong ruby; Paul Gagnon, 26, Bobby Greenwood, 32, and Salvatore Grech, 26, were charged with armed robbery and assault with intent to kill. Bond was set on each at $75,000, then boosted to $100,000 and then canceled.

All were arrested after a wild gunfight with more than a dozen officers on quiet Pine Tree Drive, just across Indian Creek Canal from the Fontainebleau Hotel, about noon Sunday.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said the four came to the home of hotel owner Olive Wofford in a rented panel truck. One, without a mask, said he had a package for Mrs. Wofford and the other three crashed in, masked with pieces of knitted sweater tied over their faces.

The young woman, Judy Pheil, and Mrs. Wofford's niece, Jill Henderson, were bound with wire. The four charged to the second floor bedroom where Mrs. Wofford was resting, Pomerance said.

"Money and jewelry, where are they?" one barked.

Fireworks Give Way to Vietnam Gunfire, Cease-Fire Canceled in 1st Corps Area

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces began observing a 36-hour cease-fire across much of South Vietnam tonight in honor of the Lunar New Year, but the truce was cancelled at the last minute in the country's five northern-most provinces.

Because of Buildup

As gunfire gave way to the crackle of fireworks in many of South Vietnam's cities and hamlets, the South Vietnamese government at the urging of the United States announced that the cease-fire which began at 6 p.m. — 5 a.m. EST — would not apply to the 1st Corps area because of the massive Communist buildup in the area.

The announcement added that U.S. planes would continue to bomb North Vietnam south of Vinh, the port city 125 miles north of the demilitarized zone, while suspending their attacks on targets north of there. It is through the southern area that supplies and reinforcements move south to feed the Red buildup around the DMZ.

U.S. officers expect the North Vietnamese to launch their biggest offensive of the war in the northern part of the country, probably in the northwest corner around the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh, after Tet, the Vietnamese festival in honor of the Lunar New Year Tuesday.

"The threat is serious up there," said a senior U.S. military spokesman. "Why should we give the enemy 36 hours to get in to position when they've got three to four divisions there ready to whack us."

An allied announcement said in the past few days there have been "increasing evidence and visible military actions which establish conclusively that North Vietnamese forces are engaged in a major offensive against the northern areas of South Vietnam."

The Viet Cong proclaimed a seven-day cease-fire beginning last Saturday in honor of Tet, the most important of all Vietnamese holidays. The Saigon government and its allies refused to go along with this extended truce, and hours after the Red truce period started, U.S. Marines on Saturday battled a North Vietnamese force 15 miles east of Khe Sanh. The Marines reported 151 North Vietnamese and 19 Marines killed and 90 Leathernecks wounded.

Communist artillerymen continued to shell Marine positions around Khe Sanh, and in a 24-hour period ending late Sunday killed 4 Marines and wounded 43. AP photographer Richard Merron reported from Khe Sanh late Sunday that incoming shells had damaged the airstrip but not seriously.

North Vietnamese troops also knocked down a light Machine spotter plane just after it took off from the Khe Sanh strip. The pilot was injured. The plane was the 228th downed in combat over the South.

To blunt the Communist attack potential, B52 bombers again dumped their big loads Sunday on suspected enemy troop concentrations and storage areas north of Khe Sanh. The U.S. Command reported that 30 large explosions and fires were seen, indicating hits on gun positions or ammunition depots.

The statement cited an "extensive buildup" of North Vietnamese forces around Khe Sanh, "including large numbers of troops in neighboring areas of Laos," and "supply activity on a large scale in the southern areas of North Vietnam obviously designed to support this offensive."

The Viet Cong proclaimed a seven-day cease-fire beginning last Saturday in honor of Tet, the most important of all Vietnamese holidays. The Saigon government and its allies refused to go along with this extended truce, and hours after the Red truce period started, U.S. Marines on Saturday battled a North Vietnamese force 15 miles east of Khe Sanh. The Marines reported 151 North Vietnamese and 19 Marines killed and 90 Leathernecks wounded.

Communist artillerymen continued to shell Marine positions around Khe Sanh, and in a 24-hour period ending late Sunday killed 4 Marines and wounded 43. AP photographer Richard Merron reported from Khe Sanh late Sunday that incoming shells had damaged the airstrip but not seriously.

North Vietnamese troops also knocked down a light Machine spotter plane just after it took off from the Khe Sanh strip. The pilot was injured. The plane was the 228th downed in combat over the South.

To blunt the Communist attack potential, B52 bombers again dumped their big loads Sunday on suspected enemy troop concentrations and storage areas north of Khe Sanh. The U.S. Command reported that 30 large explosions and fires were seen, indicating hits on gun positions or ammunition depots.

While riding a horse along Route 209 at 1:40 p. m. Saturday, Lewis Moore, 31, of New York City, was injured when the horse slipped on icy pavement and fell on him, according to Highland State Police. Moore was removed to Vassar Hospital by Alamog Ambulance of Poughkeepsie, and treated for a compound fracture of the right foot, according to Trooper J. F. Czaplinski.

Francine Medici of New Paltz was injured Saturday when her car was involved in collision with a vehicle driven by Nathaniel Adams, also of New Paltz, according to Trooper Czaplinski who said the mishap occurred on Hurd's Road Town of Lloyd. The woman sustained lacerations of the chin, troopers said.

CUFFED AND BATTERED — Handcuffed and wearing a hospital robe, Jack (Murphy) Murphy arrives at Miami Beach police headquarters after he was treated at a hospital for cuts in his face which he sustained as he tried to escape through a plate glass window from the home of Mrs. Olive Wofford during a shootout with police as he and three others tried to burglarize the house on Miami Beach's famous "Millionaire's Row," Sunday. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Surf Champ In Another Dive

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jack "Murphy" Murphy, the beachy jewel thief and former slantman, dove through the glass door of a mansion Sunday into a gunfight with police.

The blond surfing champion, diver, ladies man and amateur violinist whose suave good looks were his trademark was no longer handsome when he arrived at police headquarters for a lineup in bare feet, bloody bandages, handcuffs and a backless yellow hospital gown.

Murphy and three other men were charged with the pistol-point robbery of a wealthy widow, her young housemaid and 8-year-old niece in a Millionaire's Row mansion.

Murphy, 32, who stole the Star of India and the DeLong ruby; Paul Gagnon, 26, Bobby Greenwood, 32, and Salvatore Grech, 26, were charged with armed robbery and assault with intent to kill. Bond was set on each at $75,000, then boosted to $100,000 and then canceled.

All were arrested after a wild gunfight with more than a dozen officers on quiet Pine Tree Drive, just across Indian Creek Canal from the Fontainebleau Hotel, about noon Sunday.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said the four came to the home of hotel owner Olive Wofford in a rented panel truck. One, without a mask, said he had a package for Mrs. Wofford and the other three crashed in, masked with pieces of knitted sweater tied over their faces.

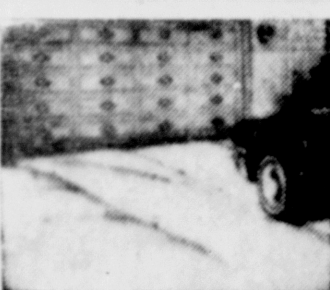

The young woman, Judy Pheil, and Mrs. Wofford's niece, Jill Henderson, were bound with wire. The four charged to the second floor bedroom where Mrs. Wofford was resting, Pomerance said.

"Money and jewelry, where are they?" one barked.

Fireworks Give Way to Vietnam Gunfire, Cease-Fire Canceled in 1st Corps Area

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces began observing a 36-hour cease-fire across much of South Vietnam tonight in honor of the Lunar New Year, but the truce was cancelled at the last minute in the country's five northern-most provinces.

Because of Buildup

As gunfire gave way to the crackle of fireworks in many of South Vietnam's cities and hamlets, the South Vietnamese government at the urging of the United States announced that the cease-fire which began at 6 p.m. — 5 a.m. EST — would not apply to the 1st Corps area because of the massive Communist buildup in the area.

The announcement added that U.S. planes would continue to bomb North Vietnam south of Vinh, the port city 125 miles north of the demilitarized zone, while suspending their attacks on targets north of there. It is through the southern area that supplies and reinforcements move south to feed the Red buildup around the DMZ.

U.S. officers expect the North Vietnamese to launch their big offensive of the war in the northern part of the country, probably in the northwest corner around the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh, after Tet, the Vietnamese festival in honor of the Lunar New Year Tuesday.

"The threat is serious up there," said a senior U.S. military spokesman. "Why should we give the enemy 36 hours to get in to position when they've got three to four divisions there ready to whack us."

An allied announcement said in the past few days there have been "increasing evidence and visible military actions which establish conclusively that North Vietnamese forces are engaged in a major offensive against the northern areas of South Vietnam."

Missing Subs Still Hunted

TOULON, France (AP) — Planes and ships 600 miles apart continued to search opposite ends of the Mediterranean today for two submarines missing with 121 men aboard. Fears rose for France's Minerve, and Israeli officials said there seemed little hope for the safe return of Israel's Dakar.

The Dakar disappeared Thursday about 20 miles off Cyprus at the Mediterranean's eastern end. The Minerve last reported to her command early Saturday morning when she was about 25 miles off Toulon, headquarters of the French Mediterranean Fleet.

No Sign of Dakar

There has been no sign of the Dakar and her 69-man crew, and a spokesman in Tel Aviv said officials could only hope the sub's radio was out of order. Search crews tracking the Minerve scoured an area where oil slicks were seen but found nothing of the missing sub.

"The finding of the oil slicks does not permit us to say we have localized the whereabouts of the Minerve," a Navy spokesman said. "The search is still going on."

serves for her 52-man crew to stay submerged "for several days," high navy sources said they viewed the situation with "great anxiety."

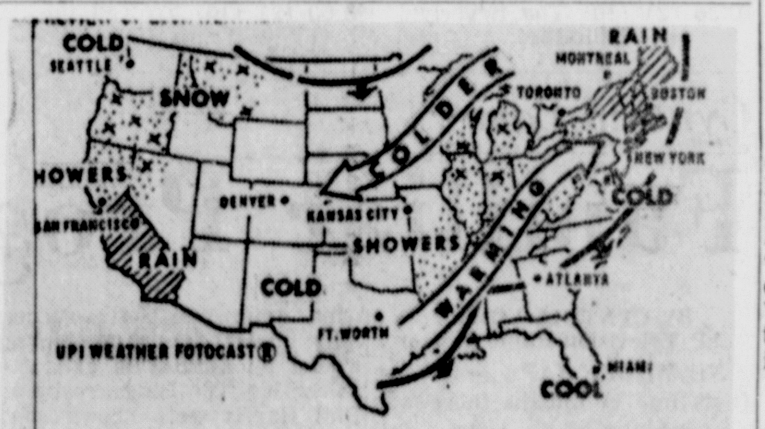

Their concern was heightened as the search task force failed to find a buoy the submarine should have sent to the surface in case of emergency. The Minerve was thought to be missing in water nearly 6,000 feet deep. The French submarine is 190 feet long, weighs 800 tons and has a top speed of 18 knots.

Search Hampered

Boats and aircraft from the Israeli, Turkish, Greek, U.S. and British navies hunted for the Dakar, Hebrew swordfish, but the search was hampered Sunday by high seas and strong winds.

Israeli officials disclosed the submarine suddenly broke off a broadcast to its home port Thursday when she disappeared. Military sources said it was impossible that Egyptian warships were involved, and virtually ruled out the chance of any other hostile action.

The 22-year-old sub was due in Haifa Monday on her maiden voyage from England after conditioning. The vessel, purchased from Britain in 1964, had been running tests off Scotland since November.
